Baron Manfred von Killinger, Nazi consul in San Francisco, who was unexpectedly ordered back to Berlin by Adolf Hitler. Spokesmen at the German consul declined to say whether the "recall" was in line with the calling back of the German ambassador from Washington. Indications were that von Killinger would "report" on San Francisco's recent Vancouver and Weser incidents.

Labor Of Love

Pleasure in the knowledge that his skilful handiwork will give some poor little girl a merry Christmas is reflected upon the countenance of George Wagner, 70, as he "reconditions" a secondhand doll. He is one of 300 WPA workers repairing thousands of dolls collected by a Philadelphia women's committee.

Bandits Prefer Wrist Watches

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5. (UP)—Three young robbers with a preference for girls' wrist watches staged a series of five "parked cars" holdups last night and early today and escaped after giving the police department one of its busiest nights in several months.

Ransoming from San Mateo county to the San Francisco waterfront, the trio chose victims in widely separated parts of the city in quick succession with every radio patrol car in the department warned to watch for them.

FDR Asks New Deal Endorsement

WILL DEFEND POSSESSIONS

LIBERALISM IS DEFENDED

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 5. (UP)—President Roosevelt today called upon the nation to reendorse the liberal principles of the New Deal and provide leadership so that Democratic systems in the modern world might survive.

Full text of the President's speech may be found on page four.

The President, speaking before the political forum of the University of North Carolina, rejected predictions that the Nov. 8 elections represented a body blow to liberal political action. Liberal forces, he said, often have been killed and buried but inevitably

Details Of Killing Told

Charles Calhoun today told dramatically how he must have slain Clyde Dillinger.

Not how he slew Dillinger. He didn't know anything about that, he said. His mind was a total blank.

There had been a slurring remark from Dillinger about Calhoun's sister. Some time later a far-away voice said: "Put down that gun. You have killed a man."

Faces Death

This was Calhoun's defense from the witness stand in Judge James L. Allen's court where Calhoun is on trial for his life as the murderer of his young stepfather, Clyde Dillinger, at Midway City last June.

Speaking slowly and calmly in contrast to his emotional attack on the witness stand last Thursday, which caused the court to call an adjournment until today, Calhoun described events immediately preceding and after the slaying. The events of the killing itself he could not describe, he claims. One of the mental lapses that frequently have overcome him was upon him at the moment he fired a rifle through a window of the house at Midway City and dropped Dillinger in the yard, then stepped out and fired another bullet through the body.

MORE STRIKES THREATENED IN FRANCE; MANY SHIPS TIED UP

PARIS, Dec. 5. (UP)—A new outbreak of strikes was threatened today as the government prepared to welcome Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, due here tomorrow to sign a French-German peace declaration.

Efforts of Premier Edouard Daladier and his cabinet colleagues failed to end a maritime strike which immobilized 33 ships, including the crack liners Normandie, Ile De France and Paris, at La Havre and Boulogne.

Order Plants Open

Dock workers threatened today to start a sympathetic strike to support the seamen who struck in protest against the dismissal of some of their fellows, and then were dismissed themselves.

The government dispatched labor inspectors to industrial cities all over the country to order employers to reopen factories which were closed as the result of the abortive one-day general strike last Wednesday.

Auto Patent Probe Begun

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. (UP)—Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold opened an inquiry into automobile patents by the national economic committee today, asserting that anti-trust enforcement must be used to remove obstacles to full industrial production.

"Anti-trust enforcement," he said, "must be linked to the successful operation of our economic system. It should not be used blindly to disturb the efficiency of mass production. Neither should it be used to upset orderly marketing conditions which increase the efficiency of distribution."

2-Year Study

Arnold is in charge of the justice department's anti-trust division. His statement ushered the committee into a new phase of its work, specific investigation of various industries in a two-year study of monopoly, concentration of economic power, and government policies.

He said the automobile industry had been selected as a starting point, together with the glass industry, on which hearings will follow. "Not with an intent to single out these industries, but because they illustrate typical situations which are common throughout the industrial field."

COUGHLIN ATTACK ON FORD ANSWERED

DETROIT, Dec. 5. (UP)—Harry Bennett, personnel manager of the Ford Motor company, today defended the Henry Ford statement on Nazi persecution which Father Charles E. Coughlin assailed in his radio address yesterday.

Father Coughlin charged that Rabbi Leo M. Franklin of Temple Bethel wrote the statement, that it distorted Ford's comments, and that Ford actually did not believe there was widespread persecution of Jews in Germany.

"Authorized"

Bennet said that the statement, which was published as "authorized" by Ford after a discussion by Dr. Franklin, was "absolutely correct." He said he read the statement before it was released and added that it was "reproduced exactly as my copy of it read."

In his discourse, Father Coughlin said that representatives of social justice had asked Bennett if the statement was authorized by Ford. He said Bennett issued a signed statement saying: "The direct quotation carried in the paper is totally inaccurate and was not written by Mr. Ford but was composed by Rabbi Franklin."

Father Coughlin declared that the incident "was a gigantic attempt to put into the mouth of America's foremost manufacturer words he did not say."

HIGH OFFICIAL IN ROUMANIAN ARMY SHOT; ASSASSIN JAILED

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 5. (UP)—Two youths today shot and wounded Colonel Cristescu, president of the military tribunal at Cernauti, in what was believed to be the first counter blow against the shooting of Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, Iron Guard leader, and 16 of his principal followers.

The youths fired four revolver shots at Cristescu. One bullet struck him in the left side of the chest. His condition was not believed to be serious.

Captured

The attack was made as Cristescu left the court building. Police captured one of the assassins, a college student named Leonid Lututovici. The other escaped.

The attack was considered an attempt to retaliate for the shooting of the Iron Guard leaders, Codreanu and 13 others were shot as, according to an official announcement, they attempted to escape from prison guards. Three others were shot under similar circumstances Saturday.

FDR'S SON BECOMES AIDE TO PRODUCER

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5. (UP)—James Roosevelt, son of the President, broke a White House precedent today by going into the movie business as vice president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc. Ltd., where some of Hollywood's best pictures—and funniest jokes—have been born.

Never before has the son of a President been in the amusement field, though another Roosevelt son, Elliott, is a radio station executive. First task of the smiling, 31-year old Roosevelt was to hold a press conference to tell of his transition from a $10,000 post in the White House secretariat to a reputed $50,000 job as the right-hand man of "The Great Goldwyn," producer of million dollar films and subject of perhaps 75 per cent of the quips concerning Hollywood.

Learns Business

Young Roosevelt's second task was to learn the picture business, from connoisseurs to sound boomers, under the tutelage of Goldwyn, who, whatever his reputation as a speaker of the king's english, is acknowledged as the old master among his movie making contemporaries. Roosevelt has been a frequent house guest of Goldwyn, since recovering from a major operation, and his entrance into picture business has been rumored for the last month.

After studying law at Harvard, selling insurance and serving as his father's secretary in Washington, the new vice president of Goldwyn's should find few dull moments at the studio, Goldwyn is the man who tried to rent the side of a pyramid from the Egyptian government for a billboard; who sought the slaying of King Zog as actresses; who even tried to get permission to use news reel shots of President Roosevelt in his latest cowboy picture.

FASCIST PRESS ATTACKS FRANCE

ROME, Dec. 5. (UP)—The controlled Fascist press renewed its attacks on France today and bitterly denounced French "insinuations" that Italy's partnership with Nazi Germany was being strained.

Virginia Gayda, who is close to Premier Benito Mussolini, wrote in the Giornale D'Italia that France, instead of advancing insinuations about the Rome-Berlin axis, should remember that her frontier province of Alsace is inhabited by 3,500,000 Germans.

Gayda's attack was considered particularly significant in view of reported "annoyance" in Berlin that the Italian campaign against France came on the eve of the signing of a new German-French anti-war accord.

Points to Alsace

Following up unofficial Italian demands for such French territory as Tunisia and Corsica, Gayda said: "Greater Germany is not only on the Italian frontier but on the French frontier as well, next to a territory under French sovereignty although it is populated by 3,500,000 Germans and is rich in

Mercury Hits 86 In Santa Ana

A record December temperature of 86 degrees, the highest reported in the last 44 years was recorded in Santa Ana yesterday at 1:15 p. m.

According to Roy K. Bishop, inspector for the county agricultural commissioner, the temperature jumped 35 degrees in an hour and a half as a hot desert wind swept over the county and thousands were taking advantage of the beach for a mid-winter swim.

Prior to 7 a. m. yesterday, the temperature stood at 39 degrees and ranchers were anticipating a slight frost. At 8:30 a. m. the temperature had risen to 74 degrees as the desert wind struck. From that point it climbed steadily until the 86 peak at 1:15 p. m.

California Traffic Deaths Decrease 13 Per Cent

ROADS IN STATE BECOME SAFER

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 5. — (UP)—California highways are becoming safer and traffic deaths during the first nine months of 1938 have decreased 13 per cent over the same period for 1937, Chief E. Raymond Cato of the California highway patrol revealed today.

Cato said the encouraging drop in accidents, death and injuries was the most favorable condition in the history of the highway patrol. He said it was unprecedented that 35 counties—exactly two-thirds of the state—are on the patrol honor roll for having reduced fatalities during the nine month period. Six other counties were unchanged, giving a favorable condition in 41 of the state's 58 counties.

280 Reduction
Cato cited figures showing a statewide reduction of 280 deaths during the nine months, from 2152 in 1937 to 1872 this year. Total accidents dropped 3.4 per cent, from 26,993 to 26,057, and traffic injuries were down 2.7 per cent, from 37,719 to 36,712.

For rural territory, under jurisdiction of the patrol, deaths dropped 15.6 per cent, from 1169 to 975. Rural accidents were down 3.1 per cent and injuries 3.3 per cent.

Riverside Leads
Riverside county, winner of the patrol honor roll and cup in 1938, leads 1938 with 27 fewer deaths. Kings county has the greatest percentage of decrease, with no deaths this year and 12 in 1937. Riverside is 12th in percentage but is almost certain to win the cup for the entire year. Previous cup winners were Los Angeles, 1937; San Diego, 1936; Santa Barbara, 1935; Sacramento, 1934; Orange, 1933; Santa Clara, 1932; and Tulare, 1931.

Cato particularly cited Orange, Los Angeles, San Diego and Solano counties for being on the honor roll despite reductions in patrol personnel.

Yolo County Safest
Yolo county probably was the safest county since rural accidents were down 33 per cent, second only to Alameda; deaths were down 21 per cent, highest rural percentage in the state; and rural injuries were lowered 55 per cent, fourth highest. Fifteen other counties showing reductions in all

Players In "Accent On Youth"

Illustrating a poignant situation in "Accent On Youth," romantic comedy to be presented Friday and Saturday nights in Ebell auditorium by Community Players, is this pose of two of the principals of the cast, Miss Agnes Brady and John Colwell. Colwell has appeared in many Players' successes and will take the role of "Steven Gaye," the playwright. Miss Brady won high acclaim for work with Junior college productions, and has taken minor roles with the Players. As "Linda Brown" she will appear in her first feature part with the association.

WORK OF PLAYERS STIRS MANY UNIQUE QUESTIONS FOR PUBLIC

There is one outstanding quality about rehearsals for "Accent on Youth," now in its final week of rehearsal in preparation for Community Players' presentation Friday and Saturday nights of this week. And that quality is the provocative one of arousing questions.

For instance, has Christmas shopping lowered your vitality? Are your nerves shattered after getting packages ready to go off on the eastern mail? Here's the solution. Drop everything and make reservations this minute for the play. It is guaranteed to restore your sense of humor. These tickets went on sale today at Santa Ana Book store.

You Under Forty?
As for other questions: Are you under forty? Are you over forty? Have you a butler in your home? Would you like to have a butler in your home? If you can answer yes to any or all these questions, be sure to see the butler in "Accent on Youth."

Three classifications were Alameda, Contra Costa, Del Norte, Kern, Kings, Lake, Modoc, Monterey, Plumas, San Diego Santa Barbara, Shasta, Solano, Tuolumne and Ventura.

Fresno county had the worst death record with 69 fatalities as compared to 63 last year, attributed by Cato largely to hundreds of migratory workers driving haphazardly in outworn cars.

NONE INJURED IN 5 MISRAPS

Five minor automobile accidents in which none was reported injured were reported to police during the week end.

At First and Main streets, Santa Ana, Charles E. Schwenck, 408 Orange avenue, was driving east on First and R. W. Butler, 302 South Main, was making a left turn from East First Saturday evening when their cars collided. Officers Chet Gross and Burnette Lane said.

Other Collisions
At Flower street and Memory Lane yesterday afternoon, cars driven by C. V. Davis, 221 North Ross, Santa Ana and Nathan Hucksby, Route 3, Hemet, collided after Hucksby had made a boulevard stop and was starting forward again.

Sunday night, Mrs. E. A. Riley reported a minor accident at Placentia road and Orangeflower avenue but none was hurt. Saturday evening, sheriff's officers were informed by Mrs. C. B. Walsworth that a collision of an automobile with a power line pole on West Chapman between Haster and Lewis roads, knocked wires into the top of a pine tree which caught fire. Highway patrol officers were called to investigate.

BRILLIANT WOMAN POET PLANS TALK

Edna St. Vincent Millay, America's brilliant woman poet, will be heard at Bridges auditorium, Claremont, tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. when she gives readings from her works.

"America's greatest woman poet" by unanimous acclaim is the reputation of Miss Millay. Miss Millay, who seldom makes personal appearances but who lectures to capacity audiences whenever she speaks, appearance before at Claremont in connection with the annual Claremont College Lecture series.

Miss Millay has the distinction of being not only a poet who is a best seller but of being the only woman to have an opera performed at the Metropolitan Opera house in New York. Her "The King's Henchman," for which Deems Taylor wrote the music, was sung by the Metropolitan in 1927. She is a Pulitzer prize winner for poetry with "The Harp Weaver," in 1923.

DREAMS LEADS TO FALL

LOCKPORT, La. (UP)—Roy W. Brauns, 200-pound oil field worker, had a pretty bad dream, but he can't remember what it was about. He does know that when he awoke he was falling from the second story of his boarding house. He suffered bruises.

General Hugh S. JOHNSON SAYS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A new element has entered the art of war and it is that alone which has already changed the map of Europe and shaken the world with jitters. That new element is, of course, the tremendous advance in airplane design and efficiency.

As a matter of fact, it is an almost completely unknown quantity. Battle between massed modern air armadas has yet to occur. In that sense Mr. Hitler's bulldozing of Europe and Mr. Mussolini's defiance of the whole British fleet in Ethiopia were pure bluff.

But, on paper at least, it is a persuasive if not a compelling bluff. The theoretical case made by the enthusiastic aviation experts is appalling. It amounts almost to this—that there is no defense against air bombing attacks in mass.

This claim rests on the circumstance of incredible speed and the fact that, unlike a ship or an army moving in two horizontal dimensions of the surface of the sea of land—length and breadth—the airplane also has the immense depth of the sky in which to manoeuvre.

For giant bombers speeds of 250 miles an hour exist and speeds of 3000 are expected. At the latter speed an enemy and a friendly ship would be approaching each other at a rate of 600 miles per hour—ten miles a minute—nearly 600 yards a second. At a target moving so rapidly, what chance has either to register a hit on the other with any known weapon? Almost none. Any man who ever pulled a trigger on a moving target knows that. About the only possible form of attack is by a faster pursuit plane approaching from the rear above. But this, so the airman says, is little better. Ships at these high speeds cannot manoeuvre as did the dog-fighters of the World War in trick dives, loops and turns. Furthermore, the limit of speed has already reached the limit of the human endurance of pilots.

Such speeds also bottle up defense from the ground. Airplanes on the ground must have sufficient warning to be manned, started and to climb into the air—as much as 15 minutes anyway. In 15 minutes the attack could move 75 miles. It is possible that listening posts more than 75 miles away could give a warning. But in Spain the practice of attack has been to approach at the plane's uttermost ceiling, as much as 20,000 feet, and then to drift in losing altitude without a sound.

Anti-aircraft guns must also have warning and time to be manned and put in action. With these great speeds and altitudes these guns also have a very difficult target.

Finally, the argument is made that, with such speeds, equal on both sides, and all the heavens in which to manoeuvre, the attack can be conducted with a force inferior to the defense because it need never join any battle it desires to avoid. It can veer and disappear at the first sight of superior force in the air. It can seek its moments to dart in and drop its bombs and then, its margin of minutes due to the fact it started from swift motion as against the defenders standing start, it can escape without a conflict.

From private advices, I hear that what forced British action at Munich was information that the Germans were prepared to send over London one hundred bombers an hour for 24 hours. London is the heart of England with 1-3 of her population and 1-3 of her resources. It is the biggest and easiest target in the world for bombers and only 350 miles from Germany by air. This is one side of the story. It is doubtless exaggerated by enthusiasm. In the whole story of war inventions and advances on the offensive have always been overtaken by the defensive. Defensive measures have not been discussed here. The considerations governing an air attack among the short distances and crowded nations of Europe are not our consideration. This piece is not written to suggest anything more than in preparing our vast rearmament program, it behooves us to know exactly what we are doing.

Thousands Greeted At Santa Ana Christmas Party

JOY PREVAILS FOR CHILDREN

With Mayor Fred C. Rowland as "assistant Santa Claus and Santa, himself, passing out candy, nuts, and other joys for children, thousands of Santa Ana and Orange county families crowded the streets of the city Saturday night in celebration of the opening of the Christmas shopping season.

Everywhere windows of the stores were gaily decorated with Christmas trimmings as merchants presented to the public special Yuletide offerings of merchandise.

Occasion of Beauty
Mayor Rowland sent out the greetings of the city over a loud-speaker system following which specially arranged Christmas music was broadcast. Just before 7 p. m. lights in the merchants' windows were darkened for a moment before they were turned on to a blaze of light. At the same time thousands of colored lights entwined in more than 20 fir trees affixed to light standards were lighted and added to the color of the occasion.

After a tour of the downtown section Santa Claus, riding on a brilliantly lighted float, made Fourth and Main streets his distributing base as children formed a line more than a block long to be on the receiving end of the presents.

Hailed As Success
"The merchants of the city gave us real cooperation in assisting with the celebration," Phil Brown, secretary of the Business Men's association, said today. "We are happy to have had such a successful opening of the Christmas season."

In spite of the fact that more than 2000 bags of candy and nuts were distributed, nearly 1000 were left, Brown said. These will be turned over to the Salvation Army of the city for further distribution.

GARGANTUA OFF TO TOUR EUROPE

SARASOTA, Fla. (UP)—Gargantua the Great, 500-pound gorilla billed as the "most frightfully fiendish brute that breathes," is off on a trip to England in his $20,000 air-conditioned cage.

Gargantua, owned by the Ringling circus interests, recently completed a tour with the Al G. Barnes-Sells Floto circus. It was his first season on the road as a circus attraction. Gargantua is seven years old.

Gargantua will open his season in London Dec. 22 with the Bertram-Mills Olympia circus. In preparation for the tour, workmen have polished up his steel and glass cage, and installed new trucks and larger wheels. The cage is made of heavy bars inside two thicknesses of shatter-proof glass.

When Gargantua was a baby, he traveled in a wooden box, with iron bars over the top. But this time he will travel in style. He will go by way of New Orleans, expected to be a calmer passage than the trip across the North Atlantic via New York.

John Ringling North, executive vice president of the circus, will precede him and arrange the tour. North also expects to sign some new European acts for his circuses next season.

A large number of circus acts come to this country from Europe, but few of them are sent abroad after the American tour, circus officials said.

3 OF 20 AUTOISTS ARRESTED FACE DRUNK DRIVING CHARGES

Three persons were arrested and book at county jail during the week end for alleged drunk driving and 17 other persons, 14 of them arrested in Santa Ana, on drunk charges.

William Sowards, 26, 1011 West Fourth, Santa Ana, was arrested early yesterday by Orange police and E. A. Fuller, 61, Los Angeles, was arrested in Tustin township last night by Highway Patrol Officer Lloyd Groover, both on drunk driving charges.

Chris Gallardo, 26, Fairlawn, arrested by Corona police yesterday on a drunk charge, was held for Santa Ana officers who hold a drunk driving bench warrant for him from city court. Justice K. E. Morrison also wants Gallardo for alleged probation violation. Gallardo was returned to county jail here by Officer Hunter Leach and Bail Bondsman Ernest Webb.

Because, it was asserted no witness saw H. L. Lara, 39, 1815 West Second, when he was driving his car home and collided with a parked car registered to Thomas Walker, 1109 West Fourth last night, police charged Lara with being drunk instead of drunk driving, they said. After striking the Walker car, according to reports, Lara drove his car into his yard.

At 2:04 a. m. yesterday, Deputy Sheriff William Trapp and Don Zaiser were called to a spot on Miller road just south of Orange-thorpe avenue near the Lyons hog ranch to investigate what was reported to be a "suspicious car." At 2:07 a. m., the officers arrived at the scene. "We found the 'suspicious' car contained only an elderly couple spooning," they reported.

Following report of a Buena Park man that he had been bitten Saturday afternoon by a police dog, he was treated by a doctor for three tooth wounds above the knee cap, the dog owner voluntarily paying the $2 doctor fee, sheriff's officers stated.

A stray cow, whom Anaheim police told sheriff's officers last night had caused several automobiles to be ditched on Lincoln near Holder, to avoid car-cow crashes, was sought in vain by Deputies William Trapp and Don Zaiser. The officers hunted through the area for an hour, they said.

August T. Voight, 29, 410 East Fourth, Santa Ana, was booked at county jail Saturday by David R. McMillan, assistant county probation department, to serve a four-months' term for failure to support Voight's child. Voight is an accountant.

A 17-year-old Mexican boy, resident of Tijuana, was booked at county jail Saturday night by immigration officers and charged with entering the United States illegally. He is planned to deport the boy.

NAVY STRENGTH FAR UNDER PAR

WASHINGTON. (UP)—The United States' deficiency in destroyers and submarines—two classes of vessels which have been assuming increasing importance in the Japanese and Italian navies—is causing considerable concern in naval circles here.

On paper, this country has about 275 destroyers, but fewer than 50 of these are regarded as modern. In the submarine category, United States has 116 vessels, but only 23 are up-to-date.

The apprehension with which naval officials regard this situation was shown in a recent remark of Rear Admiral C. H. Woodward, commander of the Third Naval District. He said it was no secret that this country is "woefully weak" in these two classes.

Building Program Rushed
The Roosevelt administration has been trying to overcome the shortcomings in these categories. More than 65 destroyers and about 30 underwater craft are building or projected, or have been completed recently, but even when these are finished the United States will be far short of its aim—to have a naval force capable of defending the nation against an enemy power or a combination of hostile powers.

Ninety of the total number of destroyers are out of commission. Of those in actual service, 60 are past the age regarded as the maximum for efficient service.

Compared with the 50 modern destroyers in the United States fleet, recent statistics show that Japan has 82 that are under-age, France 61, Britain 83. Germany has only 22 under-age, according to available figures, but the close cooperation of Rome and Berlin has led some observers to take the total of Germany's and Italy's forces in computing potential military, air, and naval strengths.

Paper Strength Great
In the submarine class, the United States has more vessels than any of the other major powers, with the possible exception of Italy. But this is only "paper" strength. Thirty-three of these no longer are in service and 30 more are afloat but beyond the efficient service age.

Best available information for other powers shows that Italy has 73 submarines under-age; France 76; Japan 44; Britain 21 and Germany 38.

In view of this nation's need for ships of the larger categories—battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers—the shortage is considered especially serious. The submarine is the principal menace to these types of vessels. Its "natural prey" is the destroyer.

The new building program will, to a large extent, make up the deficiencies but naval experts still feel more of these vessels are needed.

PET TALKS

—By MRS. T. J. NEAL—

The name "Chieftox" for the toy foxterrier didn't go over so well especially with the Chihuahua breeders. They feel it gives the impression that there is mixed breeding in the Chihuahua.

Therefore, the name Amertoy (accent on the first syllable) has been chosen for these popular little dogs, for this breed is one of the few breeds originating in America, thus the new name contains both ideas; American bred, and toy dog. Breeders are requested to make no breedings with any other breed of dog; type should be developed entirely within the present stock. A record should be kept of all breedings and pedigrees so that in time (it may require several years) full A. K. C. recognition can be obtained for the Amertoy.

The Scott's fancy canary is so named because of its circular shape. They are sometimes called "the bird of a circle." They do not fly around wild in Scotland as reported. They are striking birds and bred in cages only.

Forgery Record Prove Literacy

FORT WORTH, Texas. (UP)—A 30-year-old Latin-American forgot about the record when he tried to plead ignorance of the English language.

The man was arrested for vagrancy, and his reply to all questions was "No speaka." Officers inquired if the accused could write, and he indicated vigorously that he could not.

At that moment, a police records clerk appeared. He proved that the Latin-American had served a two-year prison sentence for forgery.

S. A. WOMAN FACES CHARGE

Mrs. Ethel B. McKeeth, Santa Ana post office clerk, of 933 West Pine, will face reckless driving, negligent homicide or manslaughter charges, according to Riverside police today, as the result of the death yesterday in Riverside Community hospital of Motorcycle Officer C. L. Burtner of the Riverside police department.

Burtner's motorcycle was struck one week ago yesterday by Mrs. McKeeth's car at Eighth and Main streets, Riverside, and he never regained consciousness. Officer Burtner's motorcycle was dragged 20 feet before Mrs. McKeeth could stop, those who investigated alleged.

Near Tragedy Scene
California highway patrol officers who happened to be near the scene of the accident as it occurred, announced they would file reckless driving charges against the local woman, alleging she drove through a stop signal. Outcome of an inquest to be held probably tomorrow, will determine the specific charge upon which Mrs. McKeeth will be prosecuted, the officers said.

Burtner, who leaves a wife and two children, had been with the Riverside police since 1930. Two years ago, his oldest son was killed in a similar manner while riding a motorcycle.

British Report Six Waterspouts Mile Off Coast

LONDON. (UP)—Six waterspouts, one of them estimated to be about 1200 feet high, were seen at Bexhill about a mile from the shore, according to reports here. There was no interference with shipping.

One of the spouts was seen by Capt. J. W. Duggan, chief pilot of Wrightways, Ltd., who was flying a freight plane from Paris. He judged it to be about 100 feet wide. The waterspouts are the first to have been seen off the coast of England since one was reported off Beachy Head three years ago. That one, which reached a height of about 2000 feet, was said to have been the largest ever seen off the shores of England.

Waterspouts have the appearance of solid columns of water, but are in reality composed of fine mist drawn up from the sea by cold air currents. While they rarely occur in northern waters, they are common in equatorial seas, where they sometimes menace shipping.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified product that is pleasant to take.

Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling germ-laden phlegm.

The Medical Profession has for generations recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a good dose of genuine Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and may be taken frequently by both adults and children.

Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles—due to common colds—hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your druggist, use it as directed and if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained, the druggist is authorized to refund your money. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

CALIF. TRACKS TOP NATION IN HORSE BETTING

BY THOMAS H. NOONE
(United Press Racing Editor)
(Copyright 1938 by United Press)

NEW YORK.—Come depression, recession or whatever you want to call it, the shower of gold at the race tracks grows heavier by the year.

Betting at mutual tracks for 1938 already is ahead of that for 1937, a survey by the United Press showed today. Reports from 16 of 18 states where betting on the horses is legalized, show that $270,005,306 has been wagered this year as against $268,695,255 in 1937.

California, where the season is fast coming to a close, heads the list with upwards of $75,000,000 bet in 262 days of racing. This figure represents an increase of approximately 55 per cent over 1937 when $47,976,269 was reported for 196 days of racing. The longer season, to which the new Hollywood track contributed $16,858,898, accounted for the record figure.

Massachusetts, with 90 days of racing, the same as last year, was second on the list with close to $50 per cent increase for $18,981,865. Only three states—Maryland, Michigan and New Hampshire—reported an appreciable decline. The sudden curtailment of the Bowie meeting in Maryland and unusual bad weather at the fall meeting of the four major tracks was believed to have caused the drop of almost $4,000,000 in that state.

Unsettled labor conditions was blamed for a drop of 15 per cent in Michigan while New Hampshire conducted but 45 days of racing—21 less than in 1937—at Rockingham park.

When completed figures from California and West Virginia have been tabulated, another million dollars is expected to be added to this year's total.

The various states collected $1,500,000 more in taxes than last year, and the figure too will show a corresponding gain in the final figures.

In New York state where the oral system of betting still prevails, no official figures are available. A conservative estimate, however, gives $20,000,000 as the probable amount wagered at major tracks. The official statistics reported by states are shown below:

State	Mutual Handle	State's Revenue
Alabama	$3,522,546	$30,589

Just One Example Of How S. C. Stopped Notre Dame

In true Rockne traditions, Mrs. Bonnie G. Rockne, widow of the late Knute Rockne of coaching fame, stepped off the train at Los Angeles at the head of a large delegation of Notre Dame rooters. The latter chartered a special train from South Bend, Ind., to attend the annual grid classic with USC's Trojans.

Coach Jones Has Right To Lose Patience With Powers-That-Be

BY HENRY MCLEMORE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5. —

(UP)—I don't think anyone in the United States would blame

Howard Jones if today he lost his patience and understanding long enough to tell the Southern California athletic control board that it was small, petty and could quietly go to . . .

well, you know where.

What a swell deal the Souththern California b. rd gave its football coach all year! What a lovely kicking around its member let him take! From the

Jones' time the Jones' team lost to Alabama, until the time it took the field against Notre Dame day before yesterday,

there were ten thousand rumors

—written and spoken—that he was through. As far as I know not one of those rumors was denied.

As far as the country knew,

Jones was almost on a game to game contract. It was a case of "lose and out you go, win and you hang on." I passed through 15 or 20 states getting from New York to California, and I didn't run into a single soul who thought Jones had a chance to keep his job.

I would like to see a school dismiss Jones today. The man could have a criminal record and still be welcome at any university you can name. All he has done is play 10 football games before a combined attendance of 520,000 persons, which, if my mathematics is sound, is an average of a little better than 50,000 a game.

Add to that the coming Rose

Bowl game, with its crowd of better than $5,000 and its guaranteed cash of more than $100,000, and you see what a help Mr. Jones is to a school that depends a great deal on athletic intake. Southern California is not a state school, and does not get $30 every Thursday from the governor. It depends on gifts from friends and alumni. You can easily see what a friend Mr. Jones has been this year, with this attendance line-up:

Alabama 58,000

Oregon State 40,000

Ohio State 63,000

Washington State 35,000

Stanford 22,000

Oregon 19,000

California 87,500

Washington 21,700

U. C. L. A. 70,800

Notre Dame 104,000

Having discussed Mr. Jones

as a money maker, let's take a look at him as a coach. He stacks up pretty well there, having on Saturday fielded a team that was too much for the eleven that everyone thought was a dead cinch for the national championship.

Notre Dame was beautifully coached, a great team. Southern California was just a little better coached and just a little greater eleven. The critics had tagged Mr. Jones as a coach who could deal only in bravado. A muscle man, so to speak, Wall, he had his boys throwing their weight around mightily well, but unless my fifth grade hygiene teacher was wrong, the muscles move

only at the command of the brain. Putting two and two together, it is fairly obvious that Mr. Jones had not neglected the mental side of his job.

In conclusion, I want to invoke Southern California's president, Rufus B. Von Klein-

Smidt; its athletic director,

Willis O. Hunter; its athletic board chairman, Hugh C. Willett, and Henry C. Bruce, the comptroller, to a cocktail party at my house next Tuesday.

At that time we will discuss

Washington Jones' successor as head football coach at Southern California. Drinks will be poured by the state sanity commission.

Cheerio, boys, and may I have four seats on the 50 yard line at the Rose Bowl. Comps,

I mean. Three of my wife's aunts are coming out.

TROY SECOND BEST IN U. S.

Now I'm sorry U.S.C. isn't going

Not that Duke won't give the ti-

S. C. But that isn't likely. What

I'm driving at is that S. C. won't

Southern California has the

the country at this writing so it's too bad the Trojans aren't going to get the recognition they deserve.

I believe they could shut out those noisy Texans of T.C.U. more decisively than they did Notre Dame.

Maybe O'Brien would wonder what became of his amazing passing record if he ever ran up against ends like Al Krueger, Stonebraker had a record like T.C.U.'s when it came to the Rose Bowl in 1936

but Bobby Wilson, the Mustangs' champion passer, hardly completed a shot all that day because a pair of rushing ends (Moserip and

Texas Christian partisans are disgruntled because the Tro-

T.C.U. is lucky. With Notre

ESCAPE TO HOLLYWOOD

by KATHRYN CULVER

Linda Bailey's father has been considered Centerville's wealthiest citizen, but when he dies, she learns that he has left her practically nothing. To hide this from the townsfolk, she sets out for Hollywood, over the protests of Fred Lancaster, who expected to marry her. En route she is robbed, but Martin Carstairs, movie star, aids her. In Los Angeles she takes an apartment with Mae Baxter, another screen aspirant. She begins to fall in love with Martin, who promises her a screen test. But Harry Gumbert, representing the studio for which Martin works, tells Linda that Martin is secretly married to Judith Grange, actress, but becomes infatuated with newcomers. Linda breaks with Martin. Hearing about a new star "discovered" in a five-and-ten store, Linda and Mae get jobs there, hoping a scout will see them. One night Linda reads in the Centerville paper that Fred Lancaster is en route to Los Angeles, bearing an engagement ring.

CHAPTER XXI

"WHAT," asked Linda shakily, "am I going to do?"

Mae came into the room and sat down. She had a half-peeled potato in one hand and a paring knife in the other.

"You've been writing that guy letters telling him how swell you were getting along in the movies?"

Linda nodded miserably. "I didn't want the folks back home to know I'd failed out here. He thinks I live at the Granada Arms."

"H-m-m. It's going to be a mess when he finds you living in this dump!"

"I don't mind that so much," Linda was thinking hard. "But, I don't want him to pity me. That's why I haven't written the truth. I don't want him to feel that I need him."

"Why not keep up what you've started?" Mae suggested. "You've still got most of the money from your car. Why not go to the Granada Arms for a week while he's here? Rent a limousine and a chauffeur and put on the dog. I can get you passes to some of the studios. Take him around as though you owned the places. You could get by with it all right."

Linda's eyes brightened. She dreaded having Fred learn the truth.

"Do you really think I could fool him?"

"Sure. If he doesn't stay too long."

Mae finished cutting up the potatoes and put them on to boil. She came out of the kitchenette wiping her hands on a towel.

"What you're worrying about is whether he loves you in spite of your being successful," she told Linda. "The way to find out is to put on an act for his benefit. If you don't do it, you'll always wonder if he proposed just out of a sense of duty because he hated to see you down and out."

Strange enough, Mae put into words exactly what Linda had been feeling.

"The only way to be sure is to make him think you're right on the way up to the top in pictures. Then, if you marry him, he'll never be able to say, 'Remember what you were doing when I married you,' and throw your failure up to you. Believe me, that's exactly what I'd do."

"Will," Linda said firmly. "It's the only thing I can do after writing what I have. Let me see."

"She consulted the newspaper anxiously. 'It doesn't say here when he'll leave Seattle. It does seem as though he might have written to me!"

"PROBABLY just a dizzy idea of surprising you. He'll certainly wire you from Seattle."

"But what about my job?" Linda asked. "If I spend all my money and he doesn't propose I'll need a job."

"We'll fix that. Make some excuse and ask for a week off. They'll dock you a week's pay."

They planned excitedly all evening how to carry out the illusion of success for Fred. Linda called up the Granada Arms and found they had a small apartment she could rent for $50 a week. Mae promised to arrange for passes at one of the large studios so Linda could show Fred around.

"It'll have to be the Magnum studio," Linda warned her with a catch in her voice. "When I first arrived I wrote Fred I was going to work there. You know when 'When you'd just met Carstairs and thought your future was all mapped out for you,' Mae finished calmly. 'I can get a pass to Magnum, all right. I know one of the girls in the office.'"

The next morning, Linda arranged to hire a limousine with a liveried chauffeur which would cost her $25 a day.

A TELEGRAM was relayed to her by her aunt from the Granada Arms that night. It was from Fred in Seattle, and it read:

WILL ARRIVE LOS ANGELES DAY AFTER TOMORROW AT THREE O'CLOCK AND CATCH THE MIDNIGHT TRAIN FOR HOME. HOPE YOU CAN SPARE ME ALL NINE HOURS. LOVE, FRED.

Linda shook her head and frowned over the text of the telegram.

"I wonder if I'm not being awfully foolish and taking a lot of granted. He's not planning on a very long visit."

"The shorter the better," Mae approved. "It won't be any trouble at all to fool him for nine hours. If he stayed several days he might catch on."

Linda had to admit the truth on that. But a nine-hour stopover didn't sound much like wedding bells to her. If Fred really proposed to take her back to Centerville, he would have given himself more time in Los Angeles to persuade her.

Yet she wasn't half so disappointed as she felt she should be. In her heart, she couldn't work up any real enthusiasm over the idea of marrying Fred. However, she would carry out the hoax and, if he didn't propose, he would at least carry a glowing report of her success back to Centerville. That after all, was most important.

HER Aunt Nora was mildly surprised when Linda announced that she had moved into an expensive apartment at the Granada Arms for a week, and told her enough about Fred so her aunt vaguely understood what it was all about. But Aunt Nora strongly believed in keeping hands off the affairs of young people, and she made no remonstrance.

There was, however, one vexatious and disturbing surprise in store for Linda before Fred arrived. There was a telegram from Helen Debler on the evening before the day he was due.

HAVE BEEN VISITING FRIENDS IN ARIZONA. WISE TO MEET FRED IN LOS ANGELES AND RETURN HOME WITH HIM. KNOW YOU WON'T MIND MY COMING DIRECT TO YOUR APARTMENT UPON MY ARRIVAL AT SIX TOMORROW.

Orange County Valencia Shipments Smash Records

TOTAL OF 8856 CARS REPORTED

Shipments of the valencia variety for the month of November through the associations affiliated with the Orange County Fruit Exchange amounted to 509 carloads, 181 cars of which were sold through market channels within the State of California and 328 cars were moved to interstate domestic markets. It was announced today.

This makes a total of 8856 cars of packed and loose valencias moved under intrastate and interstate pro-rates during the 1938 season to December 1. From the standpoint of volume the 1938 valencia shipments, packed and loose, were the heaviest on record, being 28 per cent greater than the previous record year of 1935.

Best Market

"The market on California valencias during recent weeks has been the best during the year, but prices for the entire season have ruled very low," farm officials declared. "With market conditions as they were for the season—buying power low and competitive fruit selling at record low prices—it is safe to say that had it not been for the weekly regulation of shipments to market under the California-Arizona Marketing Agreement the returns to the California citrus grower would have been less than they have been for his 1938 orange production."

"In spite of arguments to the contrary we are sure that an intelligent distribution and regulation of fruit to market with adequate safeguards on disposal of surplus in years of heavy production by the entire industry is vital if we are to obtain the maximum returns for citrus fruits grown in California."

Lemon Shipments

"Lemon shipments from this district for the month of November amounted to 18 cars. The total California Fruit Growers Exchange storage as of November 26th shows an increase of 8 per cent as compared with the storage of November 12th."

"Market conditions on California lemons continued about the same for the month of November as prevailed for the previous month with values very satisfactory on large sizes and prices only fair for extremely small sizes and off-condition fruit."

FILM DIRECTOR PRAISES BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 5.—Charles F. Reisner, eminent motion picture director and longtime resident of Laguna Beach, was guest speaker at last night's "Civic Series" conducted at Community Presbyterian church. Taking as his subject the theme "Laguna Beach, Where Nature's God Hath Wrought," the speaker outlined the natural attractions of the seaside community, as viewed through the eyes of a theatrical producer.

Cites Inspiration

"Inspiration abounds on every hand, reflecting in the work of the many artists in all media," Reisner said. "Children, stimulated by the beauty everywhere about, get the right start in their most formative years."

Reisner humorously referred to the fact that a number of his associates in Hollywood have dubbed his "President of the Laguna Beach Kind Word Society," by reason of his enthusiasm for the village. "After all, not such a bad idea," continued the speaker, going on to pay tribute to the work, personality and accomplishments of the Rev. Raymond L. Brahm, minister of Community church. Particular reference was made to the Rev. Mr. Brahm's constant encouragement of young people to engage in clean sports, in preparation for the greatest game of all: Life itself.

Worth Extolled

Emphasizing the effect that Laguna Beach has upon creative effort, the speaker extolled the work being done by artists, young and old alike, in everyday refutation of asserted "fixed points" in life, which are stated to be "Life Begins At" milestones. Creative effort, work, endeavor and accomplishment are not confined to any one year, decade, or period in one's life; in support of which the speaker reviewed a long list of musicians, scientists, painters, inventors, whose epochal creations and discoveries came at all ages in their lives.

MANILA DANCER TO MAKE DEBUT SOON

Introducing gay festival dances of the rice harvest celebrations, primitive jungle fantasies, wedding rituals of the Moro tribes, folk dances of the sugar plantations and other authentic Philippine numbers. Fely Franquelli, celebrated Manila dancer, makes her American debut at the Philharmonic auditorium, Fifth and Olive streets, Los Angeles, Thursday night under the management of Merle Armitage. She carries her own company of ten native musicians. Raffia, famous Baguio artist, designed her costumes.

This will be her only appearance in Southern California. She stops off here en route from Honolulu to New York, where she is scheduled for a series of recitals this winter.

Senorita Franquelli was born in Manila and educated there. Her mother is Antonia Devesa, distinguished Philippine concert pianist. Her father, Leandro Franquelli, was an Italian ship owner, born in Malaga, who settled in Manila.

Franquelli danced as guest soloist with the Manila Symphony orchestra and in joint recitals with Rodolfo Cornejo, composer, and Julio Anguita, pianist. She ranks with Jovita Fuentes, soprano, and Tapales, violinist, as one of the leading concert artists in the Philippines. Mme. Manuel Quezon, wife of the Philippine president, sponsored her last recital in Manila.

Jimmie Fidler in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.—There's something pathetic about the anxiety of fallen stars to flee, fast and far, from Hollywood, once they are convinced the last hope for a comeback is gone. Not many of us will ever have the disconcerting experience of being toppled from a throne, but it doesn't require factual experience to understand the impulse that sends these one-time-but-great-no-more stars into voluntary exile. Who could be content to live, forgotten, where once he ruled? Who wants to be a living ghost?

I'll never forget a conversation with one of yesterday's biggest stars. He had saved a fortune, he was happily married—but I found him, that afternoon, sitting at a bar, staring into his empty glass with the dejection of a lost soul staring into purgatory. "I'm getting out of here," he muttered suddenly, turning to me. "I don't belong here any more. A few years ago, when I walked down the street, every one knew me. I felt that I was alive. Now I'm forgotten. People look through me as though I had no substance. I'm getting bitter and imaginative—it's time to leave." When I next heard of him he was in New York, trying to re-establish his "lost identity" in a commercial business.

Unfortunately, many of those who would like to get away are financially unable to do so. Watching the once great stars who are now elbowed from set to set as nameless extras, I often think how they must envy a woman as fortunate as Mary Pickford—now safely absorbed in a new business, 3000 miles from Movietown.

You've probably read—since the studio has been making publicity capital of it for weeks—about that ocelot that was presented to Sigrid Gurle by her fiancé, Dr. Spangard. But the publicists have left untold the amusing angle, which is this: Sigrid's beloved ocelot loves every one on earth—excepting Dr. Spangard. The doctor's romance is undergoing a setback, for the big cat threatens slaughter on sight.

Rev. Harry E. Owings Observes 10th Year In S. A. Pulpit

Completing ten years of ministry in Santa Ana yesterday, the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church, received evidence that he stands close to the hearts of his flock.

His decade of successful labor here was reviewed in an impressive anniversary service at the church yesterday morning, while the minister himself spoke on a forward-looking theme dealing with the work still ahead.

Present Huge Bouquet
Highlight of the tribute paid to the pastor yesterday was the presentation of a huge bouquet from the membership, with words of greeting from Richard Robbins, a junior deacon in the church and grandson of Dr. J. Herndon Garrett, who was pastor of the church from 1899 to 1910.

Cites Advancements
"When we pause to reflect that your ministry has now covered a decade," he said, "it brings to our minds the advancements and changes which have taken place during this period. In thinking about the time you have been with us, from one viewpoint it seems like a very short time for so many things to have happened not only in our church life but in the world. During these years of trying and difficult times your sympathetic leadership has been an inspiration to us all, and you have led our church to meet the changing order."

"From another viewpoint, it seems that you have been with us for a long time, for you have made it difficult to realize that there ever was a time when you were not one of us."

Receives Praise
"As a church, we hope you will derive some satisfaction from the realization that whatever spiritual development and growth has been evidenced by our membership can be in a large measure attributed to your ministry. As we look back over these ten years we realize that it has been a privilege to have had such a ministry as you have brought us."

"This last week, I was looking over an old bulletin which announced that you would be with us for the first time on the following Sunday. I can remember how we were looking forward with anticipation and excitement to meeting the new minister. Many of us who were children at that time have now grown to adulthood and we feel most keenly that it was a privilege and a decided advantage to have had your leadership and guidance through these important years.

Choir Gives Numbers
"It is an unusually happy time for all of us on this occasion and as church members and your personal friends we look forward to the continuation of our pleasant relationships, and wish you and Mrs. Owings the best of luck during the coming years."

The choir, directed by Mary Bateman Steffensen, then sang "Sweet-er as the Years Go By." The minister responded briefly, expressing his appreciation for the evidences of love and loyalty shown him, not only yesterday but through the preceding "years of happy fellowship." The anniversary date each year brought those proofs home to him more fully, he said, and he cherished their memory.

Came Here in 1928
The Rev. Mr. Owings, with Mrs. Owings, their son, Harry Jr., and daughter, Elaine, came to Santa Ana December 1, 1928, from Granville, Ohio, where Mr. Owings had been pastor of the First Baptist church.

Harry Owings Jr., now grown to manhood, is in Colgate-Rochester seminary, preparing for the ministry. Elaine is a senior in Santa Ana high school.

USE NEW SYSTEM
Carroll Richardson, business manager of Jaycee's literary magazine, Tavern Post, said today that a new system of lithographing will be used for illustrations in the publication, replacing linoleum blocks used in former issues. Editing the Post is Herschel Albrecht, assisted by Marjorie Vollmer, June Holman and Clara Westermann.

SAN CLEMENTE GAINS HONORS

San Clemente was the first "outside area" to make its complete report to the Santa Ana chapter, American Red Cross, on its roll call of membership. It was announced today by Dr. John Wehrly, chapter chairman, who received the final report and membership rolls from Mrs. Mary Neddermeyer, who has charge of the roll call there.

San Clemente also made its full quota as did Laguna Beach branch which reported in first. With a quota of 100, San Clemente turned in 102 memberships, and $5 additional contributions. Their memberships are divided as follows: 97 annual ($5); four contributing ($5); one sustaining ($10), total received $132.

Workers Assist
The Roll Call workers who assisted Mrs. Mary Neddermeyer in the successful roll call are: Mrs. Bob Mabry, Mrs. J. D. Mathews, Effie Johnston, Mrs. Sarah Rogers, Miss Jennie A. Lane, Mrs. Nellie Bowles, H. W. Boudey and P. A. Neddermeyer.

"To these workers the chapter wishes to extend its thanks, in this public manner," Dr. Wehrly said, "for without the willing work of volunteers at roll call time the American Red Cross could not go on."

The organizations listed in the San Clemente returns are: St. Clemente's Guild, $2; Solana Aid, $3; San Clemente P. T. A., $2; San Clemente Men's Club, $5; Bank of America, $5; and San Clemente Woman's club $10.

School Enrolled
The San Clemente school enrolled in Junior Red Cross at the same time, and have remitted $246 which will pay for the subscription to the Junior Red Cross News required for each room at 50 cents each, and give a balance for some Junior service.

The San Clemente school children may now participate in all national and international services of the Junior Red Cross, and the children's library at the Orange county hospital. They started the library two years ago and many gifts of books have been made by the juniors.

The group, under Bruff's supervision, hope to collect live aquatic specimens to be placed on exhibition in the college science rooms until Christmas vacation. Both expeditions will be made Heiges, provided music at the nomination meeting.

New Philosophy Class Planned

College officials disclosed today that in addition to the 66 regular courses offered next semester, plans are now being completed to offer a new two-unit philosophy class given by Dr. Kyle A. Lyon. The new course, it was explained, would answer questions of a more philosophical nature than could be dealt with in present orientation classes, and would constitute instruction in the fundamentals of social behavior and family relations. A second new subject will be offered by Orville M. Knutson in the study of elementary statistics.

Among the regular second semester courses are those in the fields of navigation, radio electricity, nutrition, elementary astronomy and consumers' problems.

WPA USES DIVINER

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UP)—The police department lost a job to the WPA when several men were assigned to track down "lost" water mains, the location of mains and shut-offs having been confused by frequent irregular widening of Washington street. The WPA workers will chart the mains by using an electrical "water diviner."

In the afternoon, Bruff stated, because minus tides occur at these times in December. A field trip to the San Diego zoo next spring is also being planned, he added.

SALVATION ARMY HOPES TO GIVE 1500 YULE DINNERS THIS YEAR

Approximately 300 families and a total of 1500 meals will be supplied to the needy of the community by the Salvation Army-Register Christmas fund this year, according to estimates today by Major John Naton who is in charge of the campaign.

As Major Naton pointed out today, the Christmas activity of the Salvation Army are a separate item in the budget and are not provided for by the Community Chest fund.

Plan Yule Dinner
Money to carry forward the work and provide for a "Merry Christmas" to the less fortunate must be raised by voluntary contributions and through the familiar Christmas kettles placed in the downtown area.

In addition to providing Christmas baskets for families, a Christmas dinner has been planned for homeless men passing through the community on Christmas day.

The dinner will be served under the supervision of Mrs. Naton at the Salvation Army Shelter on East Third street.

Contributions for this worthwhile cause can be made either through The Register business office, Salvation Army headquarters, 214 North Sycamore street, or through contributions to the kettles.

Sees New Boost In J. C. Registration

Citing the fact that junior college enrollment may reach 1000 with late registrations, Jaycee Registrar Mabel G. Whiting today announced that the present enrollment figure stands at 963, a gain of 63, or 16 per cent, over the total last year.

Freshmen head the list, Miss Whiting stated, with a tabulation of 593, while sophomores numbered 271. Special students total 60, and 39 students are listed as post graduates.

REV. BASH IN PULPIT DEBUT

A capacity audience greeted the Rev. Gerald S. Bash, who preached his initial sermon Sunday morning to the First Christian church congregation, offering for spiritual consideration the message of the Apostle Paul as recorded in First Timothy, first chapter.

He predicated his remarks by personal suggestions to the audience as to the purposes of his ministry, which he did not intend to be reformatory, or dictatorial.

Kingdom of Christ
That the pulpit was not the place for a personal opinion, only insofar as it advanced the Kingdom of Christ.

Owing to the illness of the Rev. W. S. Buchanan, the retiring pastor, the introduction of the new minister was left to Lewis Williams, chairman of the board of elders.

The Bash's have established a residence at 1124 North Olive street.

Thief Takes Only Trousers

TORONTO, Ont.—(UP)—John Easson, described by Crown Attorney F. Malone as a thief whose specialty was stealing trousers, was sentenced to two months here for stealing a pair from a store. "Pants are this man's specialty," Malone said. "His record goes back to 1905."

Cheerful Yuletide decorations in the R. S. Fink home, 805 East Fifth street, made appropriate setting for the miscellaneous show-er held there Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Fink and Mrs. Olive Thurston were joined by Mrs. W. E. Grebe of Wilmington, in a pre-nuptial compliment to Miss Athena Austin of Cocomonga.

Miss Austin is the fiancée of Ogle Tucker of Los Angeles. She is the daughter of Mrs. Veda Austin of Cocomonga, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Fleet of that little mountain city where the family is a prominent pioneer one. Mr. Van Fleet's parents settling in San Bernardino county many years ago.

Saturday's party hostesses had planned many clever games on the theme of romance, but their prize were made in a guessing contest. A jar of walnut halves was the object of these guesses, and to Miss Audrey Van Fleet, guessing nearest to the correct number, was presented a Christmas fruitcake. The party honoree herself took second place, and received a handsome bath towel in coral tones, while the pair of nut meats went as consolation to her mother, Mrs. Austin.

Shower gifts in linens and crystal were presented Miss Austin, and as conclusion to their hospitality, the three hostesses served a tempting two-course supper menu. Miss Austin, who will be wedded at afternoon rites in a beautiful little Foothill boulevard church in Upland on New Year's Day, was accompanied from Cocomonga by her mother and grandmother, Mrs. Austin and Mrs. Van Fleet, and by Miss Ruth Van Fleet and Mrs. Alma Van Fleet. Other party guests were Mrs. J. G. Lytle, Mrs. Jack Lyon, Mrs. Pauline Johnson, Los Angeles; Mrs. Nelson Van Fleet, Miss Audrey Van Fleet, Mrs. Lemar Underwood (Mrs. Ray), Ontario; Mrs. James Hayward, Long Beach; Miss Helen Van Fleet, Brawley; Mrs. Henry S. Pankey, Mrs. F. C. Pout, Mrs. Herbert Bray, Miss Joan Gray, Mrs. T. J. Moody (Caradine Gray) and Mrs. Roy Grise of this city, with the three hostesses completing the friendly group.

Young Girls Share
Birthday Party Joys

Her December birthday anniversary was made a very happy occasion Friday night for Miss Kathleen Heard, 12-year-old daughter of the A. F. Heards, 1338 South Van Ness avenue. For Mrs. Heard had invited a group of her young daughter's close friends in to spend a merry evening of games in celebration of the natal date.

Mrs. J. W. Allen and Mrs. E. H. Layton, aunts of the young party honoree, were present to assist Mrs. Heard in her entertainment plans, and to enjoy the company of the young people. After a succession of favorite games, all were invited to the dining room where the table sparkled with baby chrysanthemums and candles in a yellow and white theme. Miss Kathleen cut the first slice from a prettily decorated cake inscribed with her name, after she blew out the dozen birthday candles.

After the young people had enjoyed their cake, ice cream and other dainties, they had the pleasure of showering birthday gifts on their hostess. In the party were the Misses Rebecca Frank, Eleanor DuRall, Charlotte Johnson, Mary Nicholson, Dorothy Johnson, Lois Kell, Mary Love, Shirley Christensen, Rae Willis, Eleanor Young, Jean Fraley, Virginia Cammet and Barbara Fipps, with Miss Kathleen, and her mother and aunts, Mrs. Heard, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Layton.

Tustin Church
Lends Setting
For Ceremony

An old-fashioned charm pervaded the wedding Sunday afternoon in Tustin Presbyterian church of Miss Hazel Lorene Heil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. P. Heil, Santa Ana Route 1 and Harlan Dixon Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ray Moore, Santa Ana Route 3.

Costumes and bouquets of the bride and her attendants were quaintly reminiscent of yesteryear. Especially lovely was Miss Heil's gown of white satin in empire mode. Her lace and net veil fell in graceful folds from a beaded comb which she wore in her dark hair, dressed high on her head. She carried a white prayer book with an orchid.

Bride's attendants were bouffant taffeta frocks fashioned with hoop skirts, and carried the daintiest of rosebud and sweet pea nosegays. Miss Dorothy Heil, as maid of honor, wore a gold frock; Mrs. Muriel Hurst, in slate blue, and Miss Doris Moore in old rose taffeta, completed the pretty picture. The little flower girl, Miss Merab Rae Hurst, was in light blue taffeta frock, with hoop skirt.

Dwayne Moore was best man, while Chester Heil and Melvin Heil were ushers.

Miss Arline Birchard was at the organ, playing a delightful program including Christmas carols, "Amaryllis," "The Pilgrim's Hope," "Just a Song at Twilight" and "I Love You Truly." Both Wedding Marches were played, the one as recessional, the other processional.

White chrysanthemums and daisies against a background of ferns and palms provided an ideal setting for the rites, read at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Calvin A. Duncan, pastor of the church. During a reception for which guests remained at the church, wedding cake and fruit punch were served by the bridesmaids. Mrs. Heil wore a burgundy costume, and Mrs. Moore was in rich red, each with a corsage bouquet of gardenias.

For traveling, the bride donned a black dress with fur bolero, teal blue hat and black accessories. The couple left for the north, with plans to return to make their home in Midway City. The bridegroom, who is engaged in ranching, is a graduate of Huntington Beach High school. He studied at Santa Ana Junior college and University of Mississippi. The new Mrs. Moore enrolled at Woodbury college after completion of her studies at Tustin Union High school.

It was in the Newport road home of Miss Jane Hill, that preliminary ceremonies were held informally earlier in the week, with the Misses Willmer Thwaitt, Dorothy Frazier, Lois Hunt and Mrs. Vivian Bodman taking their obligation.

Saturday night's more solemn rites were given in the home of the chapter president, Mrs. Terry Stephenson Jr., 926 Lacy street, Miss Virginia Graves, pledge mistress, joined Mrs. Stephenson in administering the rites, an impressive candle-light service.

Bracelets with the Sigma Tau Psi insignia were presented the pledges, together with corsage clusters of yellow rosebuds centered especially lovely with the formal gowns worn. Miss Thwaitt was in bouffant black taffeta; Miss Frazier in sheer black net with gold sequins; Miss Hunter's smart little dance frock was of gingham checked taffeta in blue and white, and Mrs. Bodman wore a graceful moire frock in vivid green.

Mrs. Stephenson as president, wore gold lace whose trimmings of rust were accented by the rust-hued chrysanthemums of her corsage bouquet. Miss Graves was in formal black taffeta.

The majority of those present continued from the Stephenson home to Long Beach where the supper dance at Pacific Coast club added a gay social climax to the evening. Joined by their husbands or escorts, the members of the dancing party included with Mrs. and Mrs. Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kieper, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lindman, Mr. and Mrs. Don Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Cargile and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rodman; the Misses Jean Berry, Jean House, Betty Marston, Jane Hill, Ruth Wasson, Fern Berkner, Charlotte Barker, Dorothy Skinner, Willmer Thwaitt, Dorothy Frazier, Lois Hunter, Messrs. Ratio Of Gain
In Population
Keeps Falling

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—Death is threatening to halt the growth of population in this city of a million, according to the Cleveland health council.

The 27 per cent increase in Greater Cleveland's population between 1920 and 1930 was the smallest on record, Council Director Howard Whipple Green reported, and the increase during the present decade likely will be less. "Births are exceeding deaths by smaller and smaller margins," Green reported. "While the excess was 15,331 more births than deaths in 1920, it was only 3180 in 1936 and 3924 in 1937."

"More and more areas fail to have as many births as deaths. Deaths exceed births in 10 census tracts between 1919 and 1923, and in 15 census tracts between 1924 and 1928. By 1929 to 1931, deaths exceeded births in 39 census tracts; in 68 between 1932 and 1934 and in 67 between 1935 and 1937."

Florida Beauties Put To Work

In making the airport at Juneau, Alaska, 50,000 years of glacial gravel were blasted out to make a 3,000-foot runway. The field is at the foot of the giant Mendenhall glacier.

It used to be all a pretty girl in Florida had to do to get her picture in the paper was to lol on a beach—or, at most, play in the surf. But Frances Toole (left) and Sally Lyon actually go to work—harvesting grapefruit which grows in clusters in Florida arbors.

Housewarmings Given
Charming Setting
In Maier Home

Now that Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Maier are so pleasantly established in their attractive new home on Lampton Road, they are receiving various groups of friends at informal housewarmings, three of which have been given recently.

Latest event in the series was a party at which Mrs. Maier entertained Saturday afternoon, serving avocado and cheese salad to precede a games program. Table mirrors were the pretty prizes rewarding Mrs. J. W. Holcomb and Mrs. Robert Hafer for their high scores in bridge, and Mrs. Frank Luton with corresponding success in Chinese checkers.

Guests surprised Mrs. Maier by presenting her with dainty guest towels as a housewarming gift. In the group were Mrs. J. W. Holcomb, Santa Ana; Mrs. Robert Hager and Mrs. Frank Luton, Orange; Mesdames Emma Hill, Leslie Coleman, Ray Bradford, George Goodwin, Susan Nichols, Quinn Nichols, Dr. Peryl Magill and Miss Julia Magill, Garden Grove.

21-2 Evening Affairs

Mrs. Olen F. Turner and Mrs. Walter Schmid planned a pleasant affair given Friday night in the Maier home, where bridge was in play the greater part of the time. Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Chandler and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jacoby received prizes for their high and low scores.

Sandwiches and cakes were served at the close of card play. Adding to the inviting setting were bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. Guests presented Mr. and Mrs. Maier with a variety of shrubs for the garden and grounds of the home.

Young Couple Married
At Chapel Services

Quiet but charming were wedding rites Friday evening in Broadway Wedding chapel where Miss Mildred Ellen Dowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Dowell of La Habra, and Van L. Counts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Counts of Fullerton, exchanged vows.

The Rev. W. S. McDougall conducted the service for which the bride was gown in deep wine hues with which she wore gardenias. Her matron of honor, Mrs. C. E. Meeks, formerly of La Habra, but now of Los Angeles, wore a navy blue suit with gardenia corsage. Mr. Meeks served as best man.

After a short honeymoon trip, the new Mr. and Mrs. Counts will live in Lynwood.

Tea Pouring Shirked

BERKELEY, Cal.—(UP)—While women have been drinking tea at noon at the women's clubrooms of the University of California for 14 years, the tradition may be dropped this year. Reason: there are plenty of tea drinkers but very few who care to help serve it.

TIPPY TACKER'S CHRISTMAS ADVENTURE

Santa Claus

By ROBERT PILGRIM

Surprise Affair Given For Anaheim Resident

Giving a layette shower Thursday evening in her home, 605 East Washington avenue, Mrs. Ronald Preston extended a surprise courtesy to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert R. Moor of Anaheim.

Prizes in appropriate games went to Mrs. Walter Sly and Mrs. James Richardson, who held first and second high scores. During the play of crotte, each guest received a tiny pink bottle filled with nuts and candies. Grand prize in this contest went to Mrs. J. Valdez.

Serving refreshments, Mrs. Preston had assistance of her sister, Miss Virginia Valdez.

Present were Mesdames Curtis Crandall, Vern Packard, C. G. Schatz, Fullerton; Mrs. Walter Sly and Mrs. James Richardson, Anaheim; Mrs. J. Valdez and Miss Virginia Valdez, this city; with the hostess and the honoree.

Veteran Rebekahs

Quite a pleasant surprise note was introduced into Friday's Christmas party for members of Veteran Rebekahs. They held their short business session in I. O. O. F. hall, and then were invited to the Main cafeteria in the building, where they were served a very appetizing luncheon.

Mrs. Bessie Waite, past president, had made all arrangements with Pat Kelley, cafeteria proprietor. Mrs. Maude Wallace, present president, led the march to the dining room. The gift exchange added another unexpected feature to the luncheon hour, for members had no idea of the manner in which it would be held. Each of the 39 Veteran Rebekahs present, found one of the be-ribboned gift packages laid at her place at the table.

Before the party broke up, members expressed their appreciation to Mrs. Waite for her successful plans and to the cafeteria for its courtesy.

TOWN HARD HIT; MAYOR ON WPA

TILDEN, Ill. (UP)—Prospects of becoming a "ghost town" hang over the once prosperous coal mining community, which faces a fight for existence.

The village now has one operating mine employing 100 men, compared with its prosperity period when three mines were operating with a monthly payroll of $125,000.

Most of the citizens are on relief or WPA rolls. Mayor Paul Jones works as a miner and in slack times finds employment on a WPA project.

Because of tax delinquencies, the town has insufficient funds to sponsor a WPA project and needy men at set to work on county projects.

Tilden residents feel they are victims of fate and can recount a long list of woes which have beset the village since the coal mines suspended operations.

Miners organized to work a mine themselves as a co-operative venture, but their plan failed. Outstanding debts of the co-operative include wages to its own worker-members.

The town's only bank voluntarily closed its doors and three of the town's leading citizens were named in Federal court indictments charging violation of the national banking act.

One of the indicted men, the bank cashier, now is employed as a laborer in building a new roof on a school. The wind, disregarding the fact that the town seemed to have enough troubles, tore the roof off a school.

Sensible Reducing Diet for a Man
Diet and cooking articles are written for the benefit of women, the housekeepers of the world. Neither sex has a corner on the ability to get fat, and hate it.

I have just had occasion to put one of my own family on our excellent Safe and Sane diet. . . . you may be interested in results and changes made in the diet to meet the demands of a man's appetite: the weight reduction we hoped to reach was one of twenty-five pounds. This is a general outline of the three meals per day.

Breakfast
Eight-ounce glass of tomato juice with juice of 1 lemon, or a smaller glass of canned grapefruit juice.
2 eggs, soft-boiled or poached
2 slices crisp bacon
2 thin slices toasted rye bread, lightly buttered.
Coffee with hot skimmed milk, 1 teaspoon cream and saccharin in place of sugar.

Luncheon
1-3 pound round steak, broiled on dry pan and served with steak sauce
Combination salad with a little French or buttermilk salad dressing
Glass of skimmed milk, or buttermilk.

Dinner
Luncheon allowance of steak, or 2 slices of meat loaf, or slice of lean white fish
Large serving of cooked green vegetable, lightly dressed with butter
Celery and pickles
Coffee with hot skimmed milk, or glass of skimmed milk.

For convenience, the fruit or tomato juice was fixed before retiring, so it was ready to take from the refrigerator and to the happy victim while he sang in the bath tub or struggled with the mysteries of a man's toilet. That libation cleared away his digestive cobwebs and left him not too hungry for the somewhat scanty breakfast.

No results were apparent for al-

If liver bile doesn't flow freely every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So step up that liver bile and see how much better you should feel! Just try Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. most ten days except that the waistline got loose, and jowls were less jowly.

On the eleventh day, the scales showed a loss of two pounds, and now, a month later, the loss of weight is close to eighteen pounds, and suits and shirts that had suffered a total eclipse, are once more in circulation.

Reduction is now proceeding at a slower pace because of a more general diet. . . . even if I get tired of cooking steak and making a green salad twice a day, seven days a week! But should weight shoot up, back on the rigid diet goes my dieter.

The safe way to figure the reducing diet for a man, is to take the Safe and Sane diet and step it up one-third. After loss of weight is well under way, let down the bars to the extent of letting him have Sunday dinner, other wise discouragement will get him and there isn't a thing you can do about it. . . . men after all, are really only grown-up children where tummies are concerned.

Write for the Safe and Sane diet, enclosing a stamped, return-addressed envelope, please. The NEW diet sheet has two other fine diets (orange juice-milk, Banana-Milk) as well as the standard diet.

ANN MEREDITH.

SERIAL STORY
LOVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE
COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDY ALCOTT—admin's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.
DIGNITY CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.
JACK HANLEY—flying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.
MARVEL HASTINGS—navy wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

Yesterday: News of Dwight's quarrel with Marvel stirred old flames in Judy; she wonders if she still loves Dwight. Jack crosses this and asks her, but she denies it, knowing she is lying.

CHAPTER XXIV

WHEN Judy Alcott left the Naval Hospital, her heart was a heavy, lifeless lump inside her. She felt stiff, old. Weary as she had never felt before. Her fingers touched her lips with a sort of numbness that she could have been the medium through which she had lied to Jack Hanley. Laid again. How many times had she lied to him? She had lost count.

She felt his hurt, she felt the sickening, senseless blow she had given him, but she was powerless to stop herself. Something urgent urged her on. Something compelling and indescribable. Something compounded of the songs she had danced to with Dwight Campbell, the sound of their laughter blending. Something that was part of the kisses he had given her and part of that night on the Texarkana when he told her he was marrying Marvel. Everything she had lived through—everything she had lived through together—was separate and alive in her memory. The memories made a little chain, like a bracelet of horns. There was his voice, asking her to help Marvel get along. And Marvel's voice saying, "You love him." There was the time both of them stood before her and said, "Will you be the maid of honor?" And the wedding—and the party in the theatrical, overdone house. And Marvel's voice whipping at her in the room on the ship.

Why couldn't she be done with it? Why couldn't she cast him out of her heart? Jack was the most wonderful man a girl could have. Fine and true and honest.

But she knew, anxiously, that it wasn't enough. Knowing his worth wasn't enough. There had to be that other, mysterious alchemy, that pull that drew you to him, that made your blood water in your veins, and your will soft and useless at the sound of his voice. There had to be emptiness when he wasn't near you, and singing happiness when he was close. Not just satisfaction. Not just contentment. Nothing that she had with Jack was enough. The flaming promise of what might have been hers leaped to life every time she heard Dwight's name.

SHE had parked the car a couple of blocks away from the hospital. She could not see to drive any more. Her hands shook on the wheel. She'd have to calm herself. She lit a cigaret. It was no good.

People passed. Faceless, anonymous people. Were they all happy? Or did everyone have his secret grief? She thought, suddenly seeing everything clearly, that it wasn't the grief that counted. She had had hers—Ward's death, long ago. Other things. It wasn't the grief. It was having, if only for a little while, the glittering mirage, the promised miracle. Feeling it, close in your hand. Touching it. Sensing it. Letting it flame through you, coming alive under its spell. If you lost it afterward—if it broke your heart and ruined your world—it was still worthwhile. Still the most beautiful thing a human being could have. Diane had had it. Nights in the little bungalow, in Bill's arms. Her mother had had it. She was lucky. It had changed imperceptibly to the solid affection, the staid warmth of growing old. Even Marvel had had it. Marvel who had married Dwight because she wanted to. Marvel, who had left when she grew tired.

"Judy!" She jerked her head up, scarcely believing she had really heard her name. "Judy!" For a moment, she felt numb. And then, seeing him open the door, seeing his lean, tanned face, and the curly hair under his cap, she said, "Dwight!"

He sat down beside her. The door closed. She heard it close. This must be real. It must be happening. But she didn't believe it yet.

"I was walking—not going anywhere—just walking," he said. "When I saw your car, I thought at first I was dreaming." "I'm dreaming," said Judy. "You're not really here."

He looked at her. His eyes were deep wells of pain. "I'm here, all right," he said with a little mirthless laugh. "There's no place else to go. I couldn't stand the house. It's her house, anyway."

She folded her hands together. She mustn't tremble so. "Would it help you to tell me what happened, Dwight?"

"You've heard. Everybody's talking. God, is there any place more vicious about gossip than the Navy? Everybody watches everyone else. You can't have a free, private moment. You can't have a private thought!"

"It must be that way everywhere," she said, remembering how few private thoughts she had been allowed to possess. "We got in from Bremerton a couple of days ago," he said. "Surely you must have heard by now."

"No," she said. "Tell me. If you want to."

HIS big, brown hands touched the dashboard, then curled around the door handle. "Nothing much. Right from the beginning we couldn't—couldn't jibe. She wanted to spend a few thousand dollars on a honeymoon and I didn't have it." He roused himself with an effort. "Oh, why talk about it. More important things. I—I heard about Bill Bell. That was a raw thing. He was a nice guy. I—I always liked him. Liked his wife. What about her?"

"She's gone to her folks," said Judy.

"The papers said Bell came down to help Hanley. Said if he hadn't sacrificed himself for his shipmate—What was that, the usual soap?"

"No, it was true. Bill was a—hero."

Dwight said moodily, "Hero stuff is usually hokey. Why should a man throw his life away?" Then he said, "But I guess he believed it. Bell was an idealistic guy. Rotten shame!"

"You don't like Jack Hanley much, do you?"

He looked at her very directly. He said, "I'm not a flyer. I don't know. Was the spin his fault—lose control? Or just the human element?"

"It was engine failure."

"I'm probably not being fair," he said. "I've had such a load of private hell. I didn't think much about it. Always have been suspicious of grand-stand gestures, that's all. But I'll give it to Bell—if it was ever real, it was real with him."

"You're very cynical."

"Why wouldn't I be?" He was suddenly bitterly angry. "Even love—love, the most tooted commodity in the book!"

"You love her very much, don't you?"

He didn't answer that directly. "She's spoiled. She doesn't realize... Sometimes she's like a little kid, greedy, eager to taste everything. She's always had so much. I guess the Navy was no fun for her. She didn't want to drive up to Bremerton. The other wives bored her. She—she was used to a different life. And Tennant's yacht is the sort of thing—"

"That isn't so awful," said Judy, trying to be fair. "I should think you'd be able to understand that."

"But he's a snake!" said Dwight violently. "He's the kind who thinks a kiss—even if it's another man's wife—"

Lonely Children

"Frankie, now remember. I want you to stay in your own yard. Don't go outside it."

"Can I ride my velocipede?" "If you promise to stay in front of your own house, and not go off the block, you can. But remember, you stay where I can see you."

"Yes'm."

Frankie was willing to promise anything if it meant he was free to ride on the sidewalk. Free to pass along the walk and he could say, "Hello!" to them and they could smile down at him and say, "Hello!" back. That meant a great deal to Frankie who was desolate without human companionship.

Then, of course, Jimmy and Paul came out, and they had their wheels. "Hi, Frankie. Come on over!" Frankie's wheels threw out sparks in their speed to get there. The three velocipedes made a fine train, too fine and speedy a train, and much too big, to stay on one little block. Quite without thought it made its way down the long avenue, two blocks, ten blocks, before it reached the station—the traffic light at the head of Main street. Here the train was headed back toward the home depot.

Mother looked out after a time, to make sure that Frankie was in front of the house. He wasn't in sight. The street was bare of children for blocks. She hurried down to Jimmy's home. No Jimmy was not home. Probably out with Paul and Frankie, his mother said calmly. The same word at Paul's house. No, he wasn't about. Maybe down street with the other two. Mother was not only worried now, she was provoked to wrath by the coolness of the other two mothers. If they didn't care where their children were, she did, and she would see to it that Frankie stayed where she could see him if it was the last thing she did on earth. But she couldn't find Frankie.

No, the officer at the traffic light had not seen any children cross his street and he would certainly have seen them had they tried to do so. O. now that he thought of it, three kids on velocipedes had stopped on the other side of the street and had gone up Hamilton street. Could they be the ones she wanted?

Up Hamilton street went mother, anger lending speed to her heels. You see, Hamilton street paralleled her own street, and the train had decided to go around and make a circular track of it. But the time mother had arrived on her own block she got word that the train had just left the station. When Frankie got home, late for lunch, he was spanked. And his velocipede was put in the cellar for one solid week.

A child of five needs play-fellows. If you are afraid of his going out of sight of home, don't give him a velocipede; or, if you do, don't let him out without escort. Riding under escort is not exactly a five-year-old's idea of fun. If the neighborhood is safe, let him go along with his crowd. If not, don't provide the means for his own hurt.

ALICE MARBLE'S CAREER

Two decisions of Alice Marble deserve as much applause as when she won the national singles tennis championship. The first is her announcement that she will sing in a New York supper club, because "I have to make a living."

A nation of men and women who have to toil for their bread will give her a hand on that. Her second decision of importance is that she will not forego tennis but will continue to play every day indoors and will go to Wimbledon next summer. Sportsmen of the country will applaud that.

She has been taking singing lessons three weeks. She used to sing in a church choir. That sounds like a standard formula for a supper club singer, but it is freely predicted that the same determination in the supper club racket that she showed with a tennis racket will carry her to her goal—a career as a concert singer.

CIVIL LOYALTY PAYS DIVIDENDS

Orange county families are beginning to think about their Christmas shopping. Many already have started. Anyhow they are considering the purchases that must be made for the holiday season.

We suggest to all buyers that they give local merchants an opportunity to supply their wants. The least that can be expected is that those who live here will inspect local stocks before thinking about spending their money elsewhere.

Trading at home is a form of civil loyalty that pays dividends. It is one way for every citizen to make a contribution to the business interests that support local institutions and give employment to local people. If all of us would resolve to buy at home, so far as possible, the result would be noticeable.

The lure of buying something cheap often fools wise buyers but price is not the only guide to intelligent spending. Of course, given equal values the buyer naturally is going to spend his, or her, money where the price is cheaper. That is the rule followed by successful merchants in purchasing the goods they sell and there is nothing against it.

Local merchants are entitled to a chance to sell you what you want at a price that you can afford. They are not entitled to charge you more for the same goods than reliable merchants elsewhere. We feel sure that our merchants can meet competition and that their stocks are ample to offer you variety in selection.

Buyers should never forget the saying that no matter how cheap you make an article there is always somebody else who can make an inferior product and sell it for less. In fact, beware of "just as good" merchandise. It is economy to buy recognized values, that stand up under use and have behind them the service that none but local merchants and sellers can supply.

LEWIS F. MOULTON

In those days not far removed from the covered wagon, Lewis Fenno Moulton came to Santa Ana. It was in 1874 when the young man, impelled by the call of the West, left his Boston home to seek his fortune in California. The record of his achievements is evidence that what he sought he found, for the 23,000 acre ranch which lies southwest of El Toro is a monument to his energy and business skill. Reared under a professional environment, his father having held important legal positions in Chicago, and for a time editor of the Chicago Tribune, Lewis' inclinations parted with those of his illustrious forbear, and he engaged in farming and live stock business.

The Moulton ranch is one of the pastoral panoramas of Orange County. Its host for 64 years offered hospitality to the wayfarer, and gave encouragement to others seeking their home in the West. It is one of expansive loveliness.

This lad of 1854, who was tossed on the knee of Abraham Lincoln, who worked for three years on the old Daniel Webster farm near Marshfield, Mass., who made a dollar and a half a week running errands for a Boston storekeeper, who journeyed through the Isthmus of Panama in 1874 to seek western opportunities, who by energy, integrity and natural shrewdness which the times required, built into the social and commercial life of Orange county a place of esteem and material sufficiency, at the advanced age of 84 enters another promised land where life is more abundant, and contentment takes the place of competition.

"Louie" Moulton's spectacular and romantic career in Orange County may not offer similar opportunities for duplication, but there always will be room for duplication of his rugged character and sterling manhood.

THE COMMUNIST-NEW DEAL HOOKUP
(Chicago Tribune)

Homer Martin, president of the Automobile Workers, was a reluctant witness Thursday for the Dies committee. He had been excused a number of times out of consideration for his difficulties in the C.I.O. When finally he did appear he was compelled, as a truthful man, to disclose a great deal regarding the communist ascendancy in the powerful automobile affiliate of the John L. Lewis organization.

The Dies committee was prepared for him with transcripts of two speeches he had made at Father Coughlin's church when he was talking freely of his long struggle to get the Stalinites out of key positions in his union. The final decision in this fight was made by John Lewis. It was against Martin and for the communists. The Stalinites and their fellow travelers whom Martin had expelled were reinstated and as the affair stands at present the head of the union has about lost his grip. However, the political situation in Michigan has changed and Lewis no longer controls the state government.

The Dies committee has had to make its way slowly against every form of New Deal opposition. Mr. Roosevelt has spoken in disparagement of it, appropriations have been refused, the department of justice would not give any help, and radicals have tried to smear it and the witnesses. Mr. Dies has fought his way through this poison gas. The com-

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

WHO ARE TAX EXPERTS?

I listened patiently to two long speeches made at the California State Chamber of Commerce on taxation. A man had flown across the country for the sole purpose of addressing the Chamber.

It seems rather a pity that the State Chamber would take the time and energy of people to listen to a man who was no more constructive than this speaker. He simply told what he believed would make a good tenure tax plan. He would limit the surtax on any individual to 40 per cent and he had very definite limitations on every kind of tax. He referred to the tax "experts," but when he was asked to explain how he recognized a tax expert, what the qualifications were for a tax expert, he said that there was no such thing as a tax expert; that he had used the word carelessly.

When he was asked if his plan was not arbitrary, he contended that all taxation was arbitrary. He simply had no principle on which taxes were based. He believed they could be arbitrary.

And because people have tried to establish taxes from an arbitrary basis, is one of the reasons why we are 20,000,000 jobs short in this country.

This speaker asked the writer how there could be a tax system that was not arbitrary and I attempted to explain that if we charged each individual as nearly as we could in proportion to what that individual cost the government for the service which the government rendered to him, this would not be an arbitrary taxing system. If the government would do like any honest business attempts to do—charge each customer as nearly as he can, a certain percentage above the cost—there would be nothing arbitrary about this system of taxation.

But for a man to stand up and say that certain figures were the right amount of taxation and not explain how he arrived at these figures, is certainly not helpful to the audience. One was inclined, from a sarcastic standpoint, to ask such an individual what would happen to the rest of us, if this man, who could tell the amount each individual should be taxed, should happen to die. We would be in about the same position as the people in Germany and Italy, who have to take orders from a dictator. Under a true democratic form of government, our taxes should be run on certain fundamental principles that will add to the general welfare of all the people and not be left to the arbitrary whim or hunch of some so-called tax expert.

If we were asked to define a tax expert, we would say he was a man who could point out the results, over a long period of time, of certain taxing principles being carried out in the past by different nations. He could show the results that followed and also point out influence that affected the results of the taxing system.

It is of the utmost importance that the people come to understand that taxation should be carried out on certain fundamental principles and not trust some man, whom they regard as magical or has some super knowledge to blindly set a certain figure and tell the rest of the world it would bring results, if he could not explain the principles and put them in harmony with the first law of life. His reputation as a speaker on taxation can only satisfy those people who are delighted with pleasant illusions.

PROPAGANDA

My idea of spreading propaganda is where an individual, who is presenting his ideas, does it in such a manner or in such a form that the one who has opposite opinions cannot present them; that the man who is setting forth the ideas, cannot be questioned as to inconsistencies.

When both sides can be heard and questions answered, then we get away from propaganda and attempt to seek the truth.

So the next time you find that a man will not answer questions and has no explanation for what he is advocating, you can mark it down that he is a propagandist, largely to satisfy his financial interests or his own ego.

mittie in due time will make report, which will be full of information for skeptical and incredulous citizens who have been reluctant to believe that there was a working agreement between communists, left wing Socialists, academic Marxians, collective reformists, C.I.O. militants, and the Roosevelt administration. As a preliminary to a report Mr. Dies called Secretary Hull's attention to the fact that a number of organizations promoting alien dogmas, cults, and political ideas in the United States have failed to comply with the new law requiring the registration of their party with the state department. Congressman Dies suggests that Mr. Hull seek the advice of the department of justice.

The law is not an oppressive one. It requires nothing more than identification of organizations having foreign connections. It is the mildest sort of a police measure intended to bring alien activities out into the open, where they should be. Most of the societies named by Mr. Dies have communist, Nazi or Italian Fascist connections. Some may be subsidized by foreign governments, although that has not as yet appeared in proof.

The official organ of the American communist party in New York is the Daily Worker, edited by Clarence Hathaway, one of the party officials, and it plainly states in its masthead that it is "affiliated with the communist international." The communist international, as its name implies, is the international agent of the Stalin government. The Daily Worker is subsidized by the soviet union, at least to the extent that it receives free cable service from Moscow carrying the Stalin propaganda for publication here. It is thus, even technically, as the organ of the American communist party, an agent of a foreign government. The Nazi bunds are engaged in the propaganda work for Hitler's dictatorship and are unquestionably inspired by the office over which the loud mouthed Goebbels presides.

The least thing that the New Dealers can do is to make these subversive comply with the law, register with the state department, and account for themselves if they sought to evade the requirements of the act.

"GIFT OF A GENEROUS GOVERNMENT"

(Saturday Evening Post)

Senator Gillette, dedicating a new post office at Rock Rapids, Iowa, recently said: "This beautiful building is the gift of a generous Government. It is a distinct privilege to belong to such a Government—one that is able to take care of all future needs."

"Baloney and poppycock," retorted Paul C. Smith in the next issue of the Lyon County Reporter. "The Government is not giving us anything. The money to build the post office came from the money we, as taxpayers, paid the Government. And another thing, Mr. Gillette: we do not belong to any Government—the Government belongs to us. The people of Iowa like you, Mr. Gillette, and will continue to like you unless you throw in with the gang that so recently tried to chop off your political head, and adopt their attitude that we, the common people, are chattels of the Government, or preach on the munificence of the Federal Government in giving us a post office."

Fellow Citizens:—Europe is making agreements—one country with another, non aggression pacts, etc., but armament goes on. Rulers talking further visits between the various capitals—there is more talk of a bigger and better conference for settlements and peace. They seem to be working for a five power assembly.

France is trying to put her house in order as to the style of government she shall pursue—military, centralized or labor-minded.

We in America are embarked upon an adventure, which seems to have as its purpose the unification of the Americas—to meet what comes out of Europe's seething pot, nearly boiling with the fires of nationalism and race hatred. Evidently, out of this rapidly developing international situation, linking and perhaps disrupting the capitals of the world, will come very powerful deceptive events.

The restless masses are showing signs of taking a hand, being encouraged with hopes of a decision, if their voice is loud enough. But—if strife and contention rule—what can you and I expect?

Is America to salvage her ideals at home, ridding herself of subversive elements, or will she become enmeshed in this tangled web of internationalism—spun by the spider of fate? The sword of greater armament, hangs heavier and heavier, over the web. Our prophets, Washington and Lincoln, foresaw this. The world has grown very small since their day—it thinks in a big way—but have the rulers changed?

Verily, it is a good time for every man to put his house in order—if he can—and fortunate is that nation which has sober leaders and a goodly number of sober minded citizens. Peace and plenty will not come by beating our plowshares and pruning hooks into swords and spears. When peace and prosperity come that must be reversed.

DONALD CLARK.

Fellow Citizens:

On November 17th, 1938, Mr. Paul Armstrong, General Manager of the California Fruit Exchange gave a talk at the Elementary School of Orange on Pro-rate and prices of Oranges and in his talk he also showed how the average price of twenty three cents paid by the consumer was distributed.

While I have no way of checking all of Mr. Armstrong's figures, I question very much his statement that the average price per dozen in the United States was twenty-three cents only. He also stated that of this sum the grower received five cents per dozen. Just like that!

Using Mr. Armstrong's own figures: the average packed box sold contained 222 oranges, or 18.5 dozens. Had the grower received five cents per dozen his returns per packed box would have been nine, two and one-half cents, which, of course, is ridiculous. Had he said three cents instead of five cents, he would have been just about correct.

I notice from your paper that several committees have been sent to Washington with a view of inducing the Wholesalers and Retailers to cut their margin of profit. The railroads have also been asked to reduce freight rates. If Mr. Armstrong's figures were used showing a five-cent-per-dozen net return to the grower, I doubt very much the successful outcome of these meetings.

Even if the Revolving Fund is added to the grower's net returns, send Plan but, because of established freedom from financial worry, the mental powers of all will be released for growth and unlimited development, so that "the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose."

The abundance of capital for industrial expansion will be readily obtained by the constant, rapid circulation of money throughout every avenue and channel of commerce.

As for savings "in the form of life insurance" the Townsend Plan will greatly increase such investments which many are now unable to secure for lack of money to pay premiums which can be maintained with the help of pension money. As for "other investments he may make" the same advantage applies. The Townsend Plan has nothing to do with politicians becoming "managers of capital in business," nor with investment of pension money. The "great mass of people" will continue to invest in their own way as they do now. "Higher wages and better living conditions" will be much more in evidence under the Townsend Plan than ever before. The incentive to invest and accumulate wealth will be as strong as ever by all who have ambition to succeed in life's game. Human nature will not be in the least affected by this plan and all the "hogies" that seem to be so terribly alarming to the editor will be found to be mere fictions of the imagination.

The editor ignores the fact that increased production is useless if consumption is unable to absorb the products of industry. The Townsend Plan will stimulate production and increase consumption. This is so self evident that it seems idiotic to deny the fact. Every objection to the Townsend Plan that has ever appeared in print by any writer or economist, regardless of his fame, has invariably proven such writer's lack of full knowledge of the plan and this editorial in the Register is no exception. The exact opposite of every statement made will follow the operation of the Townsend Plan. Such writers all present only a very small part of the entire scope of human welfare. The "almighty dollar" is infinitely inferior to almighty God whose infinite intelligence operates for the greatest good of all while money alone tends to lower selfish attitudes, desires and actions that cause inharmonious and all the miseries of humanity. If there ever has been an absurd philosophy of economics, it is that the Townsend Plan is NOT a recovery plan.

Science Explains Capillary Reaction Which Causes Ordinary Hives

Urticaria is the name given to the blisters filled with fluid that frequently come on the human body as a manifestation of sensitivity to foods, drugs or other substances. The most common manifestation of urticaria is ordinary hives. Some time ago it was established that urticaria may also occur on the body as a result of sensitivity to heat or to cold, or sometimes associated with light, physical exertion, or emotional excitement. Some people believe that the urticaria following physical exertion or emotional excitement is the result of increased heat developed in the body following these activities.

In one case a truck driver found that he had hives whenever he sat in a warm room, took a hot bath, or exposed himself to the sun on a hot day, or when he was in any other manner exposed to heat. He would get relief by taking a cold shower bath or by going into the icebox of the dairy where he worked. Whenever he got excited

Labor and Farm Economics

By WALTER E. SPAHR

Professor of Economics, New York University

As an art, the principles are applied to raise the standard of living. The point of view is that of society as a whole; the question of welfare relates to society in general.

The economics of labor, like the economics of agriculture, usually departs from these standards. Labor "economics" is little more than a description of labor organizations, a history of laborers' efforts to increase their share of the social income, and a series of arguments as to why labor should get more of the social income, and just how much labor should get is rarely made clear.

Some so-called "labor economists" leave the impression that laborers should get all the social income if they can. In short, the principles set forth in labor economics are usually vague, foggy, or nonexistent. The art aspect of "labor economics" is little more than advocacy of a class struggle. Labor "economics" rarely, if ever, look at the economics of the problem as a whole. They do not give equal consideration to consumers, employers, and owners of capital. In general the consumers are ignored, the employer and the owners of capital are regarded as the enemies of the laborer.

Most labor "economists" are in fact labor leaders in a class struggle, rather than economists in the proper sense of the term. The one-sided, unfortunate Wagner Labor Act is a natural result of the efforts of labor "economists" who generally fought for and subsequently defended it. One could probably count on the fingers of one hand the genuine economists in the field of labor who stick to economics and view labor's problems in the light of social welfare as a whole. Such men are not welcome in the circle of those labor "economists" who are really little more than pro-labor agitators.

The consequences of this unfortunate situation are that both labor and society in general have been made to suffer unnecessarily. The real economics of labor is not widely understood, and the labor problem has been reduced to a matter of class struggle. This leads nowhere except to trouble, and reveals relatively little intelligence in dealing with these matters.

Almost exactly the same things can be said about the so-called "economics" of agriculture. Proof of this can be conclusively demonstrated by scrutinizing the agricultural programs which the nation has seen advanced for many years, but particularly since 1933. In general, economic principles have not only been largely ignored, but vigorous efforts have been made to set up programs which run counter to economic laws. The results ought to be obvious by this time. Just as the so-called "labor economists" have perpetuated a huge unemployment, so have the so-called "agriculture economists" perpetuated agricultural distress. Look at the following prices of four principal agricultural products at leading markets:

Wheat (per bu.)	75.75c	66.75c
Corn (per bu.)	45.00c	32.37c
Oats (per bu.)	27.37c	27.00c
Cotton (per lb.)	8.85c	8.93c

The prices of hogs, steers, butter, eggs and wool were higher in the latter date than in 1933; nevertheless, there is an important lesson to be found in the prices listed above.

The lessons of price-fixing are clear. Restriction of production increases costs to consumers. Subsidies perpetuate maladjustments. Agricultural programs which raise prices so that exports decline or which decrease the use of machinery and unemployment, or which invite more people to engage in agriculture, or which increase social costs so that the demand for agricultural products declines, all lead to trouble.

Economics is one thing; politics and hope are something else.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

World Copyright 1938 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Agriculture department has only a plain expression for anyone who asks the details about Mr. Wallace's famed coup in the British wheat market.

This plain is nothing, however, to the anguish inside because the story got out. Ordinarily you would expect government publicity mimeographs to sing about such a successful disposal of 20 million bushels of wheat. Not this time. The official handout was a bare three sentences without any detail, issued belatedly and reluctantly after newsmen had picked up a tip in London and forced the farm fixers here to say something.

Possibility that this recalcitrance is due to modesty may be discarded. Washington mimeographers have never exhibited this particular emotion. (Doubt, Chicago, Cincinnati, South Bend at a time just before Congress, when most of the other leaders are avoiding commitments.)

His friends think he intends to appeal for commonsense cooperation at the next session, suppression of old animosities, cautious action, because: this country is suffering from high economic blood pressure and needs a more careful diet, more rest.

It looks like the first expression of affirmative congressional leadership.

Agriculture department bigwigs have been silently hitting the southern trail to build up a big vote for the coming cotton, rice and tobacco quota referendum (Dec. 10 and 17). Gone to make the wind reaction have been Wallace, Wilson, Brown, Evans, Hutson, Dugan, Bledsoe and Jarrett. They expect to win all three votes but consider a big showing necessary in view of quota antagonism in the corn and wheat belts.

No wonder Madame Perkins held back copies of her contracts board's steel wage report until after election. It contains a minority report claiming the minimum set for steel wages will crowd small steel men out of business. The publicity announcement made the Saturday before election contained three pages of hurrahs for helping steel workers but not a word about the existence of a minority report, questioning this deduction. Observers who do not know whether this represented a deliberate pre-election deception of stupidity are inclined to accept the latter explanation.

Let it not be suspected that officials here are ashamed. Hitler is employing the same subsidy-under-selling system against us in South America on all products. So are or angry, he also developed the eruptions. In a skin clinic in New York, investigators were recently able to observe 15 people who had similar symptoms on exposure to heat. In the case of women, the eruptions came when they stood in front of a fire or over a cookstove. Two patients had the attacks when they ate hot food, and 12 believed that their attacks came on when they indulged in games, dancing or swimming.

Incidentally, many of these patients were also sensitive to other substances, seven of them reporting with hives when eating certain foods, and one having hives whenever he took aspirin.

Some tests were done to find out what brought on these hives. It was found, for example, that when one leg of such a sensitive person was put in hot water, he would get blisters on other parts of the body but not on the leg that was put into the water. This would indicate that the urticaria was not caused by the direct heat on the skin.

Some tests were made in other ways, leading finally to the view that there are several different types of cases. It seems possible that excessive cooling of the skin results in reduction of the pressure in the very small blood vessels, called the capillaries, and that this reduction of the pressure in the capillaries results in that fact that cold will prevent blisters in people who are sensitive to heat. In such cases when the person who has prevented the blisters by exposure to cold, returns to a hot room, the blisters may suddenly appear. The reason for this is that the heat relaxes the blood vessels and thus permits the chemical substance to be released in such amounts as to produce the reaction in the skin.

Thus modern science finds an explanation for conditions which have long been a mystery and for manifestations which have sometimes been called miraculous.

They Tell About Dictators

William Phillips, American Ambassador to Italy, right, and Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson, recently recalled from Germany, appeared in jovial mood as they arrived at Warm Springs, Ga. They gave the President firsthand reports on Nazis and Fascist treatment of minorities.

Democrats Form Volunteer Group

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 5.—(UP)—Organization of the Democratic Volunteers of California was announced today following a meeting here of Northern California Democratic leaders.

A program designed to "advance the purposes, policies and political philosophies of the present democratic government" was set forth in incorporation papers to be filed with the secretary of state. Officers were elected as follows:

President, M. Mitchell Bourquin, San Francisco; vice presidents, Ray Coughlin, Sacramento; Jesse Carter, Redding; I. Nielsen, Fresno; manager, Edward T. Murphy, San Francisco; treasurer, Carl Youngberg, Sacramento; secretary, David Lubin, San Francisco.

Murder Suspect Goes To Court

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 5.—(UP)—Accused of slaying his sweetheart because she refused to elope with him, Olen E. Jones, 23-year-old Fresno cafe worker, goes on trial on a murder charge in superior court here today.

District Attorney Dan F. Conway said he would ask the death penalty for the youth. Jones has entered a dual plea of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity to the charge.

Jones assertedly shot Miss Edith Gilliland, 23, a waitress, in her apartment last Oct. 4 and then fled to Bakersfield, where he was arrested two hours later. Police said Jones admitted holding the gun which fired the fatal shots.

USE CHEMICAL PRECAUTION

Merchant Patrolman Gil Wagner reported to Santa Ana police last night that a motorcycle parked at Second and Bush streets, had fallen to the street and gasoline spilling from it created a danger. Officers Paul Cozad and Ralph Pantuso called Assistant Chief John Garthe of the fire department who eliminated the danger by application of chemicals.

Poetess Changes Mind About War

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—(UP)—The poetess Edna St. Vincent Millay revealed today that she has changed her mind about war and is no longer an ardent pacifist.

Here for a reading of her poems at the Curran theater, Miss Millay said "I am afraid the only hope of saving democracy is to fight for it—not necessarily to be dragged into a war unprepared, but to choose our own time."

"In some places of power we have men who are not human beings in the sense that we have been brought up to understand that term. We have beasts in control of human beings. I am not speaking of the German people themselves, but if we have a wild animal to deal with we cannot be pacifists forever. Whatever we do, we cannot keep aloof from the general world situation; it is silly to think we can."

Actress Sues For Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.—(UP)—Jane Wyman, film actress who said Myron Fitterman persisted in comparing her with his former wife, was to testify today in her divorce action against him.

She charged him with cruelty, alleged that he was jealous when she danced with other men, and objected to their raising a family.

Miss Wyman, a native of St. Joseph, Mo., married Fitterman at New Orleans on June 29, 1937. They were admitted holding the gun which fired the fatal shots.

SEEKS HUMAN PREY

Report from a local garage that a Tustin Mexican assertedly was intoxicated Saturday night and went out hunting human prey with a revolver. Officers Paul Cozad and Ralph Pantuso called Assistant Chief John Garthe of the fire department who eliminated the danger by application of chemicals.

look like a bubble dancer. Studied in incongruity: Bela Lugosi, in his horror rig for "Son of Frankenstein," bragging that his 10-month-old son can walk. With improper handling, Richard Greene is pretty enough to become male America's choice for Public Enemy No. 1. The only adequate description of Claudette Colbert's jewel collection is a prolonged "Whe...e...e...uh!"

WOULDN'T you expect it—those Dead-Enders are all pool sharks. Look alike: Norma Shearer and Midge Evans. Bette Davis' popularity will not be hurt by the sequence in "Dark Victory" which shows her very shapely legs. In-a-line description of Charlie Chaplin: Peter Pan turned gray.

All the world knew Errol Flynn was going to be a papa before he did, but he thinks "it's wonderful." Carole Lombard must have taken that story about the species being just a rib seriously—she's made ribbing her life hobby. Few men ever achieve the nonchalance with which George Brent flits from romance to romance. Without that twinkling smile, Sonja Henie does look a lot like Alice Faye. Wish they'd had technical shorts when I was a kid—what a way to study a history lesson.

One of the best stories of the month concerns Director William Dieterle and his fanatical faith in astrology. Assigned the direction on "Juarez," he determined to make obeisance to the stars and refused to start production until they were favorable. Furthermore, the correct starting day having been determined, he waited until the precise moment pronounced most auspicious before starting the first scene. Finally, his favorite astrologer gave him the "go ahead" signal by phone and Dieterle shouted "Cameras!" About ten minutes later one of the sets collapsed—and it took two hours to repair the damage.

The most interesting department in any studio is "Sound Effects," where expert technicians concoct the sound of everything from noise-making contraptions to duplicate any and all desired sounds. About nine times out of ten, the sound has to be produced by devious, involved apparatus—and habit, I suppose, makes the sound man regard the tenth case with suspicion. I saw one of those "tenth" instances the other day on a major studio set. The sound man had built an elaborate apparatus, costing nearly $600 to imitate the sound of escaping steam. It didn't work. After an hour of profane experimentation, some genius hit on a happy idea—why not try the real thing? They opened an escape vent in the radiator system, recorded the sound—and the effect was perfect.

Helen Broderick was reproaching Maxie Rosenbloom for a breach of etiquette. He regarded her sadly. "You were born with a silver spoon in your mouth," he alibied. "I was born with a rusty fork."

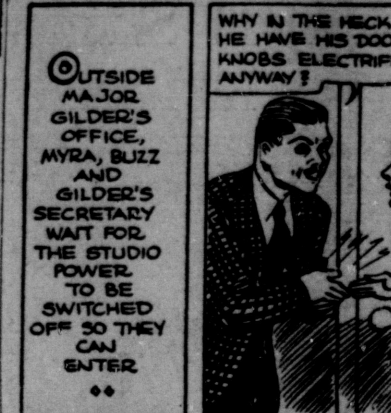

End Strike At Fisher Plant

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—(UP)—Workers in the Fisher body corporation in Flint went back to their jobs today.

They had been on strike since Friday. Last night officials of General Motors settled their grievances in conferences with officials of the United Automobile Workers Union.

The strike, if it had continued, would have forced the huge Buick plant in Flint, to shut down, throwing 10,000 men out of work. Buick has reached the peak of production, and the plant had enough bodies to last only a few days.

Candido Echarrri and Jose Guernica have left New York to play jai-alai in Shanghai, where the world's largest court is located. Jack Charbonau, Detroit University quarterback, was on a train for the first time in his life when the Titans traveled east for a game with Boston College this fall.

It'll be years before the Southern Methodist's Capt. Charley Sprague...who starred as a center when a sophomore...shifted to tackle to plug a gap there as a junior...and wound up this season as one of the best ends in the league. And you can look for Texas Tech to become the newest addition to that same conference pretty soon now. The Red Raiders, undefeated in 10 games, this season, applied for admission last season but were denied...but the powers that are said to be finally regarding the Raiders as tough enough to travel in anyone's company.

Ickes Awards Tunnel Contracts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(UP)—Secretary of the Interior today awarded to George A. Thompson and company of Los Angeles, Calif., a contract covering construction of the Olmstead and Alpine-Draper tunnels in conjunction with the Salt Lake aqueduct, aqueduct division, Provo river project, Utah.

The Los Angeles contractors submitted a low bid of $746,535.50 for building this section of the $5,500,000 aqueduct division project. Ickes said work would begin at once on the project.

The Olmstead tunnel will be approximately 3600 feet and the Alpine-Draper tunnel will be 15,000 feet long. They are respectively six miles north and 16 miles northwest of Provo, Utah. Both tunnels will be 6.5 foot diameter concrete lines, horseshoe shaped sections. The contractor is required to complete all work within 650 calendar days.

WORLD WIDENS SECONDS LONG WEATHER DATA IN DEATH TRAP

NEW YORK — (UP) — International cooperation in the development of meteorology in the past year was praised by Alexander Klemm, director of New York University's Danie L. Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, at the 59th annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers here.

Klemm praised contributions by the U. S. weather bureau in meteorology, but criticized discontinuance by the army in its upper air observations.

"Although the standardization of meteorological practice is still far from complete," Klemm said, "the groundwork has been laid and the various cosmological organizations have served to render every meteorologist conscious that the scope of his phase of geophysics is world-wide and transcends political boundaries."

He said the U. S. weather bureau, in cooperation with the army, had a network of 25 stations making regular airplane-meteorograph flights into the sub-stratosphere in 1936. About this time the radio-meteorograph was introduced. The radio-meteorograph was made up of a balloon which transmitted regular weather reports to a receiving set on the ground as it ascended.

"It is a great pity that concurrently with their introduction came what was tantamount to a breakdown of the aerological network," Klemm said. "Most serious contributing factor in this was the withdrawal of the U. S. army from the program which resulted in the abandonment of the collection of upper-air data at seven (weather) stations. Even if radio-meteorograph stations are put in by the army in their stead, the full number of stations will not be operative for a considerable length of time."

Klemm said airlines had contributed much to the progress of meteorology.

"The requirements of the air transport companies are so exacting that for their demands to be satisfied necessarily means a continual improvement in the quality of weather data," he said. "Important is that fact that even the smaller air transport companies now realize the advisability of employing trained meteorologists. The urgency for considerable improvement of observations at sea has been called to general attention by the proposed establishment of trans-Atlantic service."

new legislation is expected to be created by a new penitentiary commission to administer, under the minister of justice, the various penitentiaries and the penal system generally. Many of the reforms in the present system will be achieved through regulations by the commission.

Other reforms to be sought by the government, it is understood, will be in the treatment of juvenile delinquency, more efficient management of the penitentiaries and an avoidance of the disorders that were widespread three or four years ago, due largely to overcrowding and to improper treatment of prisoners, and adoption of the best features of the Borsal system of dealing with the vital problem of juvenile delinquency in effect in Great Britain.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving snaps such as this are easy with any camera. You can tell the whole story of Thanksgiving Day in pictures.

THANKSGIVING Day dinner offers one of the year's best opportunities for a series of story-telling pictures. These pictures can be taken easily, with any kind of camera, and they will occupy a proud place in your snapshot album.

Most of the pictures will be indoor snapshots, and these are easy nowadays. All the equipment you need is two or three large photo bulbs and some inexpensive cardboard reflectors. Screw the photo bulbs into bridge lamps, attach an extension cord so the lamps can be moved about easily, load your camera with a fast panchromatic film of the super type—and you are all ready to fire away.

Don't limit the pictures to the dinner itself. There is much more to shoot. Start early. Get a picture of Mother with her basket, bringing in the Thanksgiving groceries—or one of the store delivery boy bringing them in. Show the mixing of the Thanksgiving cake—and after it is baked, take a picture as the icing is put on. Snap the guests as they arrive. Catch a snapshot of the turkey as it is taken steaming from the oven, nestled in golden-brown potatoes. These preparations make remarkably interesting pictures—so don't miss a detail!

At dinner, you will be pretty busy with food—but it's easy to take a few moments out now and then for a snapshot. Keep the camera at hand, and arrange your lights so they can be placed quickly and snapped on. You'll want a picture of the whole table, with everyone seated, just before dinner begins. Then there are individual shots—Billy admiring the turkey—Ann busy with an enormous "drumstick"—Uncle John cracking nuts.

You can easily see what a splendid story there is to tell—and there will be many more picture chances than those listed here. Better start making your plans, and let the family help make up a list of "must" snapshots. It will be fun for them as well as you.

John van Guilder.

"Y" World's Fair Building to Serve 10,000 People Daily

Members From 59 Countries to Meet In Unique Center

More than 10,000 visitors daily will be accommodated in the unique Y.M.C.A. building now nearing completion on the New York World's Fair Grounds, it is estimated by the New York City Association which is erecting the building.

Many of the visitors will be members, coming from the 59 countries where the Y.M.C.A. operates, since the building is to be the official headquarters of the organization as well as a resting place open to the general public. A staff of 160 people will man the building, the first which has ever been built on an exposition ground. One hundred twenty-five of the force will provide about 5,000 meals daily in the Above is the building being erected by the New York Y.M.C.A., which will serve as headquarters and a meeting and resting place for "Y" members visiting the World's Fair from all parts of the world. Shown in the insets are: left, William H. Long Jr., Chairman of the Y.M.C.A. World's Fair Committee and Chairman of Board of Doremus & Co., of New York; right, Richard W. cafeteria and dining halls. A corps of twenty guides will be assigned to conduct special tours through the Fair Grounds and around New York City for groups from other cities visiting the Fair under the auspices of Y.M.C.A. The building is a one-story, streamlined structure with a floor space of 15,026 square feet. It occupies a full Fair block, about the size of one half of a city block. In the building will be two large social rooms, spacious lobby, a mezzanine gallery, large cafeteria, soda fountain, terrace for open-air dining, modern kitchen and administrative offices.

Modernized classical lines feature the architecture. A fresco, showing a map of the world on which Association centers have been located, will adorn the exterior of one wing. Interior decorations of the social rooms have been planned to be bright enough to personify summer festivity but so soft enough to afford rest for eyes seeing many sights on the Fair grounds. In contrast, the color scheme of the cafeteria will be very bright, heightened by a sky-light covering almost all of the ceiling.

Operation of the building is in charge of A. E. Hoffmire, executive director of William Sloan House. Mr. Hoffmire will serve under a Y.M.C.A. World's Fair Committee, headed by William H. Long, Jr., and consisting of J. Horton Ijams, John Lowry, Frank M. Totten and Edward O. Wittmer, all New York City business executives.
